

Lovely Chorus, Melancholy Chorus

"Autumn Leaves" is the number three song on the nation's hit parade. But Autumn Leaves rate last on Harry Newton's personal list of favorites. Like hundreds of other Victoria home-owners, Mr. Newton, 1290 Union, rakes them up quickly but the trees shake them down faster than he can rake them up. However, really ardent gardeners treasure the leaves, store them carefully to be used as compost next spring. (Times photo.)

Second Man Quizzed In B.C. Bank Hold-Up

VANCOUVER (CP)—A second man was arrested on Wednesday night and held for questioning in connection with the $10,000 bank hold-up Wednesday night. Police said no charges had been laid. Two other persons—one a pretty red-head suspected of driving the getaway car—were arrested shortly after the hold-up but police said no charges had been laid. Wednesday's robbery—Vancouver's seventh so far in 1955 and the 14th within a year—was executed by two gun-wielding youths who police said fled in a stolen car driven by a young woman. Another man was in the car.

SERIES BY HIS VALET

Hitler's Private Life

Macabre midnight wedding toasted in champagne . . . and tea . . . deep in bunker in doomed Berlin.

By HEINZ LINGE, Hitler's Personal Valet

(World Copyright 1955)

BERLIN—In the 10 days before the lights went out forever for Adolf Hitler, the underground bunker was the scene of two gay parties.

The first was on April 20, when Hitler celebrated his 56th birthday. He was unusually gay and light-hearted, and the fears of capture which had tormented him a few days before were not to be seen.

I remember that Goering, Ribbentrop, Keitel, Bormann and other high-ranking officers came to the bunker to pay their respects.

"Faithful to the end" was the theme of the party which followed. Hitler drank cup after cup of tea—not easily procured in those days, even for him. It was his favorite and invariable drink, though he was not a teetotaler, as I have heard suggested.

Coffee and champagne were served to the other guests and Eva Braun gaily proposed a birthday toast—in champagne.

As that party drew to a close, Hitler gave his guests permission to leave Berlin if they could get away, but almost immediately the Russians cut all the escape roads.

I remember how concerned the Fuehrer grew for Eva Braun's health as they lived out their curious underground existence.

"She looks pale, my little Eva," he would say to me. "You must take her for walks up in the fresh air whenever there is a lull in the shelling. But, mind you, bring her back Linge, before the shelling starts again."

So, by his orders, I often used to accompany Fraulein Braun on a walk amid the rubble of Berlin. We were good friends, and once, near the end, she turned to me and said: "If no miracle happens, to save us, it is my greatest wish that when I die with the Fuehrer it will be as his legal wife."

Her voice broke. It was an emotional moment, but there seemed no comment that I, the valet, could make. As I hesitated for a moment, the shelling broke out again, relieving me of the need to reply. We began to hurry back to the bunker.

But I remembered her remark when Hitler sent for me on the morning of April 29. In silence

NEW YORK (UP)—General Motors Corp., earning more during the first nine months of 1955 than any corporation in history has ever earned in a full year, seemed well on its way today toward a billion-dollar net profit year.

The giant firm's nine-month sales report, issued Wednesday, said its sales for 1955 already have amounted to $9,607,875,772 and its net income for the three-quarter period was $912,887,537.

The total sales figure for the first nine months of 1955 was nearly as great as the record sales figure of $9,823,529,000 for all of 1954.

Proud Capital Premier's Aim

Present Grant 'Just a Beginning,' Says Bennett; Many Plans in Mind

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said today the capital city grant, now $50,000, "is only a beginning."

The premier said the two-year-old capital city grant is "nominal" and only serves to demonstrate that the provincial government "wants to make this a beautiful capital."

Premier Bennett would not elaborate, but said the government has far-reaching plans in mind.

He was commenting on the latest developments in the drive by city groups to have a civic auditorium constructed, to serve as a cultural centre and to enhance the city as a convention site.

The premier said that "the city of Victoria has responsibilities too," in a broad indication that the people of the city will have to take the lead in financing an auditorium.

When a reporter suggested, at the press conference, that the capital city grant funds expended on the Dallas Road waterfront are contributing to the "unbeautification" of the city, the premier said that if people are dissatisfied with how the grant is being spent, they should approach their civic representatives.

The committee comprises three city and three government representatives. The government trio is from the civil service.

"If there is too much criticism," he said, "we would take a long look at it," but at present the government leaves administration of the grant to the committee.

Princess Sees Primate On 'A Private Matter'

LONDON (UP)—Princess Margaret called today on the Archbishop of Canterbury, Episcopal head of the established Church of England. The visit aroused immediate speculation that she had gone to ask for guidance about her romance with Peter Townsend.

The primate of the Church of England received Margaret in mid-afternoon in what could be one of the most dramatic developments in the two-and-a-half-year romance of the Princess and the pilot.

Margaret drove in a royal limousine from Clarence House to Lambeth Palace, the official London residence of the Archbishop.

Dulles Offers Reds Security Guarantee In Return for Unity

GENEVA (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov blocked in the Big Four conference opening session today a move by the Western powers to begin immediate detailed discussion of the twin issues of German unification and European security.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
GENEVA (AP)—State Secretary Dulles told Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov in the Big Four conference today that to win German unity the United States is prepared to join in security guarantees "which will preclude any revival of German militarism."

Molotov in his opening statement to the conference earlier had hit hard on the Soviet theme that what is most important now for the peace of Europe is creation of a European security system.

In two world wars "unleashed by German militarism," he said, the nations of Europe have endured "untold suffering and destruction which have not yet been made good."

The emphasis both men placed on the security did not mean an identity of approach to the problem, which is in basic dispute between Russia and the western powers.

WANTS NATO SCRAPPED
Molotov wants a broad new security system, scrapping the Atlantic alliance; Dulles, Harold Macmillan of Britain and Antoine Pinay of France want supplemental guarantees to reassure Russia about unifying Germany.

Molotov called specifically in his talk for the abolition of the Atlantic alliance, which he said could be done "gradually."

Pinay, however, declared that NATO is the basis of security of the western powers and would not be scrapped.

Opening statements of all the ministers were couched in conciliatory tones.

Macmillan, British foreign secretary, said there are "considerable gaps" between Russia and the West but Britain believes these can be bridged.

CRITICAL POINT REACHED
Dulles said: "We have all agreed that Germany should be unified by free elections. Yet to achieve German reunification at this stage requires that we each be satisfied that this step will not impair our security."

"Recognizing this necessity, the United States is prepared to join in assurances related to German unity, which will preclude any revival of German militarism."

The tensions and mistrust between the Communist and Western blocs, Dulles declared, "have deep roots that cannot easily be eradicated."

End Subsidies Wheatmen Told

Prices Based on Free Market
Urged By Canadian Spokesman

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

GENEVA (CP)—Canada today warned the international wheat conference here that there will be market disturbances as long as heavy domestic subsidies are paid.

W. C. McNamara, acting leader of the Canadian delegation, said frankly that "too many" countries represented at the conference follow domestic wheat policies which add to the difficulties of exporting countries.

McNamara contrasted this with the position of the Canadian farmer, who "has not been, and is not being, subsidized."

It was Canada's opening statement at the multi-nation parley, convened at the invitation of the United Nations in the shadow of a mounting world surplus. The conference started Wednesday and may last five weeks or more.

SUPPORTS PACT

In his statement, McNamara reaffirmed Canada's strong support of the International Wheat Agreement.

"We continue to believe that an international agreement is in the interests of producers and consumers alike and can contribute to the stabilization of economic conditions throughout the world."

McNamara said "existing difficulties" in wheat marketing are partly temporary, while others may prove to be more permanent.

"In particular," he said, "there will continue to be market disturbances, more or less serious, so long as wheat production continues to be subsidized as heavily as it is in many countries of the world today, both importing and exporting."

In due course, delegates would consider the levels of world prices for wheat. "The Canadian delegation hopes that when this subject does arise... world prices will be related to the prices being paid to producers within the respective negotiating countries."

NOT SUBSIDIZED

McNamara then turned to the position of Canada's own wheat producers.

"I would remind the delegates that in Canada world wheat prices are domestic prices. The Canadian producer of wheat has not been, and is not being, subsidized."

Through the Canadian wheat board, the Canadian producer receives the proceeds of sale of his wheat on world markets, neither more nor less. Of how many countries represented at this conference can it be said that the domestic producer receives the world price for his wheat? The answer is: Very few.

U.K. 'Open-Minded' on Wheat Pact

WINNIPEG (CP) — Britain cannot be coerced into participating in the third International Wheat Agreement, Graham Spry, agent-general for Saskatchewan in the United Kingdom and Europe, said Wednesday night.

In an address to the annual dinner of the Manitoba Pool Elevators, Mr. Spry said the British government, weighing its own people's interest and wider interests of its friends and associations, "can be persuaded and it can be convinced."

"But it cannot be coerced," he said.

Mr. Spry said Britain's attitude towards the IWA, from which it dropped its membership, appears to be "open-minded."

"And there is a 50-50, even a 60-40 chance, Britain will participate in the third wheat agreement."

Mr. Spry said the IWA is "still a practical possibility."

SUNDAY SPORT VOTED DOWN IN WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG (CP)—Winnipeg voters Wednesday apparently rejected Sunday commercial sports by the slim majority of 152 votes.

The final count early today showed 34,485 votes against the city seeking the necessary provincial legislation while 34,333 voted in favor.

City clerk George Gardiner said that because of the close vote he would examine the rejected ballots of the referendum.

Only 42 per cent of the 162,000 eligible voters turned out at the polls.

Voters also rejected by close margins two money-by-laws. One, for a $4,900,000 bridge and freeway over the Red river to give free traffic movement to north Winnipeg, and a $450,000 by-law for six new branch libraries.

Little Interest Here In Sunday Sport Plan

City Hall officials said today there does not appear to be any great interest in the question of allowing Sunday sports events here.

They were commenting on a vote in Winnipeg which rejected removal of the ban on paid athletic events on the Sabbath.

Sunday Sports Vote Dec. 14 in Vancouver

VANCOUVER — City council, sitting as a finance committee, has approved a Sunday sports plebiscite for the Dec. 14 elections.

The decision is scheduled for ratification at next Monday's council meeting.

Only council member to stick to his original stand in opposition to a plebiscite was Ald. Donald McTaggart, Q.C., who was chairman of the committee that framed the plebiscite wording.

Vancouver voters were asked: "Are you in favor of the City of Vancouver seeking legislation to permit the playing of athletic sports, with an admission or participation charge, on Sundays between the hours of 1.30 p.m. and 6 p.m.? Yes or no."

Sunday sports votes were held here previously in 1950 and 1951. Both were defeated.

BCE Submarine Cable Coming Next Spring

Submarine cable now being manufactured in Britain for B. C. Electric's power line between the mainland and Vancouver Island will be shipped to Vancouver via the Panama Canal next spring.

The 132,000-volt line will go into operation later in the year and will deliver 120,000 kilowatts of electricity to the Island.

Longest link in the cable, now being manufactured at Manchester by British Insulated Callender's Cables Ltd., will be 17 miles with no joints or splices. "This will be the longest unspliced cable link ever manufactured," a B. C. Electric spokesman told The Times from Vancouver. In order to manufacture it the British company had to re-tool its whole factory.

FREDERICTON, N.B. (CP)—Ottawa gets different degrees of respect from different regions of Canada, the Gordon royal commission on economic prospects was told Wednesday. Dr. John S. Bates, chairman of the New Brunswick forest development commission, saw the variance this way:

"Quebec and Ontario tell Ottawa what is to be done. The Prairie provinces tell Ottawa what they have done. British Columbia goes ahead and does what it wants to do and doesn't tell Ottawa anything. The Maritime provinces politely ask Ottawa for things and take no for an answer."

Iceland's Laxness Wins Nobel Prize

By MICHAEL JAGERBLUM
STOCKHOLM (AP) — The 1955 Nobel prize for literature was awarded today to Halldor Kiljan Laxness, the great Icelandic epic writer.

The 53-year-old novelist won the award for his sweeping tales of drama and poetry in the everyday life of the 150,000 people of his little north Atlantic island.

Laxness, who began writing as a boy among his father's sheep and had his first novel published at 17, will receive a cheque for 190,214 Swedish crowns ($37,000) and the Nobel insignia from the hands of King Gustaf of Sweden at the traditional Nobel ceremony in Stockholm Dec. 10.

LEFTIST LEANINGS

Today's award ended a bitter controversy of several years over the candidacy of the colorful Icelandic who once termed the Atlantic pact "a society of war lunatics."

Informed sources said members of the Royal Swedish Academy had overcome their dislike for Laxness' leftist political leanings only because of the current easing of international tension. Laxness himself denies that he is a Communist.

The academy became the awarding body for the literary prizes in 1901 under the will of Alfred B. Nobel, inventor of dynamite.

COMPLEX PERSONALITY

Laxness is best known abroad for the novels "Salka Valka," which he began as a film scenario in Hollywood, and "Independent People."

Both books are crowded with men and women of strong passions engaged in a bitter fight for existence against the background of a majestic nature.

The man to win the Nobel honor immediately after American writer Ernest Hemingway and Sir Winston Churchill is one of the most complex personalities among contemporary Nordic writers.

With his admitted leftist leanings Laxness is also a Roman

Budget Hostility Worries U.K. Tories

LONDON (Reuters)—Government supporters today expressed shock at the wide hostility aroused by the emergency financial budget unveiled Wednesday by R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer.

The stepping up of the purchase tax, with a "raid on the kitchen" involving even the humble rolling pin, caused immediate dismay even among a section of the government's own parliamentary supporters.

Two of them—Lord Hinchinbrooke and Harry Legge-Bourke—voted against the purchase tax increases.

The Labor Opposition, angered by the budget provisions, forced a vote immediately on the resolutions. The government was upheld 314 to 227.

A flood of immediate critical reactions from trade interests ranging from automobile manufacturers to small shopkeepers was followed today by blame from almost every section of the press.

But industrial shares on the London stock market, which slumped last week when the announcement of a new budget was made, showed strength today and many moved upward. Financial quarters explained the new budget measures were regarded by investors as less serious than anticipated.

GOVT. SPENDING HIGH

Newspapers criticism of the budget is concentrated particularly on the chancellor's failure to make large enough reductions in public expenditure.

The independent and influential London Times says many had hoped Butler would take the opportunity "to get current public expenditure down to a more manageable level to prevent the economy being so heavily burdened it staggered at the impact of every moderate economic disturbance."

"For them there is almost total disappointment." The pro-government newspaper Daily Telegraph says that, taken as a whole, the strategy of Butler's budget was "a disappointment." He had treated the whole argument for a reduction in government expenditure "with less than either his usual accuracy or his usual logic."

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP)—The Philippines and Yugoslavia battled through three more deadlocked ballots in the race for the United Nations Security Council today before Britain forced an adjournment of the voting for 10 days.

The United States, pointing out that a "trend" toward the Philippines was developing in the voting, opposed Britain's motion and suggested that the assembly hold at least three more ballots today.

The assembly vote for adjournment was 21-18 with 15 abstentions. Five votes were taken on Oct. 14 with the Philippines unable to gain the two-thirds majority required for election.

Three more ballots were taken last Thursday with neither the Philippines nor Yugoslavia gaining the required majority.

Today's results showed: 12th ballot: Philippines 32, Yugoslavia 24, India 2.

BCE Power Contract With U.S. Terminated

B.C. Electric confirmed today that its contract with the U.S. northwest power pool—in which 25 cities co-operate—has expired and is not being renewed by the Americans.

From Vancouver a BCE spokesman told The Times: "It seems that new installations on the Columbia River have temporarily satisfied the northwest states' demand for power."

"But the power lines spanning the border will be maintained so that, with the mere throw of a switch, B.C. can export or import power in emergencies."

B.C. Electric are the only Canadian participants in the pool which links up the electrical systems of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Utah and Montana.

The Canadian contribution to the pool, begun in 1948 and controlled through the Bonneville power authority, was about 200,000,000 kilowatt hours a year.

"This represents about one-tenth of the consumption in the lower mainland area centred on Vancouver," the BCE spokesman said.

"We regard these power lines spanning the border as an extremely important link and in an emergency we could import or export power with the throw of a switch."

"We try to keep a 15 per cent margin of power over and above what we think will be needed during the year."

"Part of the power we save from the northwest power pool will be used in B.C.—the rest will be put in reserve."

A Brake on the Wheels

THE BRITISH EMERGENCY budget announced yesterday is an attempt by the Government to control the incipient inflation that threatens the economy. It is designed to curb spending, both by consumers and by the Government. This will have the effect of lessening the upward pressure on prices and at the same time making more of Britain's production available for export.

In announcing his higher sales taxes, (now as high as 90 per cent on some luxury items), his reductions in spending on public buildings, his five per cent tax increase on company profits, and the abolition of subsidies for housing, Mr. R. A. Butler, Chancellor of the Exchequer, noted that the country was in a prosperous condition as far as employment and personal incomes were concerned. But in a sense, Britain is living beyond its means, he warned. Wage claims, increased spending and industrial unrest such as the recent dock strike, were creating an unhealthy condition.

"This Government is determined to restore the balance of the economy without delay," Butler declared, "so that we may rebuild our reserves and create a firm basis for future forward moves in national policy. . . . We are moving on a tide of vigorously growing expansion which is outstripping the resources available to maintain its strength."

In other words, the home consumption wheels were beginning to spin a little too fast and have to be slowed.

In pre-depression years this situation might have been hailed as a period of growing prosperity, bound to last forever. But Government is more cautious these days. The price index is watched more carefully; the goal is stability rather than frenzied spiralling of the economy. And a condition in which the employment offices have two jobs for every application (as Mr. Butler says is the case in Britain today) causes almost as much concern as if there were two applicants for every job.

The new moves toward control through the national budget follow earlier steps to curb bank loans and curtail instalment buying.

Mr. Butler's taxes will tend to direct the public's money out of the stores and into savings, where they are less apt to bid up the price of goods. There is, of course, a certain paradox in this action in a country which has so highly developed a welfare system as Britain's.

In the welfare state it is not so necessary to save for a rainy day—at least a good many citizens will believe it—since expenses of sudden illness, for instance, will not have to be met out of the nest egg in the bank. They will be covered by the state welfare plan. Thus for many people who formerly went without certain goods in order to arrange for their own security, there is now less incentive to save.

Acting to curb the inflationary tendency at home, Britain will still need some co-operation from other nations in expanding its exports. The protectionism in the United States, for example, which has cut into British machinery and bicycle exports, might well be given a second look. Britain, of course, will recognize the highly competitive nature of the world market. Commonwealth or NATO ties have little direct effect on trade; the tendency is to buy in the cheapest market regardless of other influences, and Britain itself follows this logical economic policy.

Since Mr. Butler has made it plain that imports will not be restricted—as the Labor Government restricted them in a similar predicament—it is obvious that to narrow the trade gap he will have to give a decided impetus to exports. How this may be achieved he apparently did not say, but the Government's course will be watched with interest.

Mission to Washington

AS THE CANADIAN PRAIRIES no longer face a passing farm problem but an economic crisis of national dimensions, Canadian officials have been conferring with the American Government in Washington. But there is no news yet to indicate that the United States will change a policy of wheat dumping which threatens to demoralize the world market and make a mockery of the international wheat agreement.

When leading members of President Eisenhower's cabinet went to Ottawa recently they heard Canada's official protest against the American policy. All Canada received in return was an undertaking to let experts of both countries confer. They have conferred. And the dumping is still under way.

In Washington it is explained officially that the United States gives no wheat (or disguises the gift by accepting unusable foreign currencies) to any country which would buy wheat in the normal fashion. Therefore Canada's markets are not injured.

This easy excuse will not bear examination for a moment. Of course Canada's markets are affected by cheap or free American wheat. Every foreign nation which can hope to receive some of this bounty will postpone or reduce its normal purchases here. That precisely is what has been happening while nearly a billion bushels of grain piles up in the Canadian elevators and farmers' barns.

Lately it has been reported in Ottawa and Washington that the United States will stop injuring Canada by some agreement to carve up the world wheat market and assure Canadian sales in certain fixed areas. That would put Canada in a strange and dangerous position to be sure.

No foreign nation will willingly be ordered to buy in Canada, especially when it might otherwise get cheap or free wheat in the United States. We possibly might get certain assured markets, though that is unlikely. We would certainly get resentment throughout the importing nations.

The long-run problem of wheat surplus no doubt will work itself out, as it always has before in the fluctuation of crops and weather. But Canada, with a substantial part of its whole economy based on wheat, cannot wait that long.

Its immediate need is some guarantee from the United States that the dumping program will be limited to a known volume. Then and only then can we know what we are up against. As it is, we have no assurance as to volume, no limitation as to time, and all this uncertainty is gravely damaging our relations with our neighbor.

Czechs and Free Elections

THIRTY-SEVEN YEARS AGO tomorrow the voice of freedom rose from Czechoslovakia with the proclamation of that nation as an independent republic.

For years the Czechs presented to Europe and the world a model for the modern state, advanced in social legislation, prosperous—a country of happy people where industry and the arts flourished and liberties were matched with an appreciation of responsibilities.

Such was the character of Czechoslovakia until the jackboots of Hitler's regime stamped down the principles for which Czechs stood.

Briefly, after World War II, Czechoslovakia again knew freedom and hope. But only briefly. The Communist coup of March, 1948, restored it to a position of subservience.

Yet the free voice of Czechoslovakia has not been stifled. It has been raised by the country's Foreign Institute in Exile. And today as the Geneva meetings below the summit start that agency expresses an important view in relation to one of the main questions on the Geneva agenda—German unification.

The Czech Foreign Institute in Exile draws attention to the suggestion that "since the U.S.S.R. would agree to the unification of Germany only under the conditions of its neutralization, the Western Powers should in exchange for this concession insist on free elections in Central Europe and on the neutralization under the most thorough safeguards of this entire area of the European continent."

In the complex play of diplomacy at Geneva, the Czechoslovak proposal may be little more than a talking point. Even if it is that only, it does reflect the spirit of Czechs in exile and draws attention to the conviction, expressed by one of the nation's leading writers, that his country would live again.

That opinion apparently persists among Czechs. They would like the opportunity to give it complete testing through the medium of an uncontrolled vote.

New Halloween Mask

The Lure of Broadway

BY STEPHEN L. DEBALTA, From New York

THE insatiable urge for entertainment of several hundred thousand New Yorkers, reinforced by an uninterrupted flow of holiday-bound visitors, can hardly be satisfied by the sixty-odd legitimate theatres, the several hundred movie houses, the half dozen television channels, the three major league baseball fields, the twenty-five thousand seating capacity Madison Square Garden, the several sports arenas and the wide assortment of nightclubs. The amusement facilities of this teeming metropolis can only be decided in astronomical figures which challenge credibility, and yet are far from meeting the demands of the vast army of pleasure-seeking patrons.

Several pages in the daily papers and special sections in the Sunday editions can accommodate only news of the main Broadway attractions, covered by a corps of trained writers, whose lifework is devoted to reporting on the more pleasant phases of the feverish life in the New World's capital.

HIGHLIGHTS
To give an account, however brief, within the limited space of this column, of the main events that are in store for anyone venturing in the Times Square area is, therefore, a provocative challenge which can only be met by singling out the season's most outstanding highlights.

The visit of the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company from London, celebrating the 75th anniversary of its first American tour in 1880, will unquestionably give this season a marked distinction, for the Gilbert and Sullivan masterpieces have achieved in their own field a classic status equal to the Shakespearean repertoire in the dramatic field.

From Queen Victoria to Queen Elizabeth II, the D'Oyly Carte Players have been making audiences laugh on both sides of the Atlantic through three-quarters of a century. In England they played through blitz and buzzbombs, through prosperity and austerity, with only one pause when the outbreak of World War II stopped them for three months.

AMAZING TEAM

The company, founded by Richard D'Oyly Carte, who also built the Savoy Theatre in London for his amazing team of players, is now managed by his granddaughter, Bridget D'Oyly Carte, who inherited in a direct line through her father Rupert the task of keeping the witty and melodious Gilbert and Sullivan tradition alive.

No other known theatrical company in the western world has maintained such a long and unbroken existence. It is, therefore, quite easy to understand why no other theatrical organization anywhere, regardless of financial resources and wealth of talent, has never been able to achieve the perfection of the D'Oyly Carte Players in the performance of the Gilbert and Sullivan repertoire.

The recruiting and training of the stage personnel is the very foundation of an artistic tradition which no one has ever succeeded in duplicating.

The success of the operetta, H.M.S. Pinafore, which we have seen performed this week at the Shubert Theatre, swept the country in 1880 to such an extent that hundreds of companies presented as many different versions of this masterpiece, while crowds on the street were humming the familiar tunes of Pinafore. In consequence of a curious copyright law, not one penny from the riotous American success went into the pockets of the authors. In the New York test case, an Irish-born judge declared from the bench: "No Englishman possesses any rights which a true-born American is bound to respect."

TIMES CHANGED

This happened 75 years ago, but things have changed since. The present tour of the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company, which started in July on the Pacific coast, will close in February, after two weeks in Toronto and two weeks in Montreal, and will add considerably to England's dollar supply.

Paris, not to be outdone by London, sent us an attraction which, though not as old as the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company, nevertheless is also a historical landmark in the theatrical march of time. The organization consists of one performer only, Maurice Chevalier, a name that stands for the most witty, charming and spicy kind of entertainment that made Paris the most alluring international playground.

ARROGANT FASHION

Chevalier, now 67 years old, defies in a bewitchingly arrogant fashion the weighty load of years that have not succeeded in slowing down his spirited tempo. Both physically and artistically, he now appears and acts about the way he did at the peak of his successful career, when he was here last time a quarter of a century ago.

While evoking most pleasant memories in the minds of old timers, he delights the newcomers of the younger generation with the witty and risqué bandinage of a Parisian boulevardier, who defies prudery with charming candor and refined finesse.

To this observer it seems that the height of his artistic and physical feat is that he succeeds in holding the stage alone for a whole evening, keeping two thousand enraptured listeners interested and delighted, even though the major part of his program is in French. In the memory of this writer, Sarah Bernhardt, the immortal French tragedienne, was the only thespian who had remained a symbol of eternal youth during her whole career on the stage. When asked, at the age of 75 what made her "tick," she replied: "Art is eternally young, and one who devotes his life to art never grows old."

As Our Readers See It

COSTS AND BENEFITS

Residents of B.C. are concerned regarding the higher taxes enforced by the elected Social Credit government. Nothing, so far, has been suggested or accomplished by the said government officials for the benefit of the working people.

Every resident is compelled to pay extra taxes on practically every article purchased. The result is that many folk are doing without commodities badly needed, while the goods remain on the shelves or in the factories.

Premier Bennett appears to be disgruntled regarding the decisions of the prime minister of Canada in connection with the tax agreement. But he fails to realize the methods and policies of the said prime minister of Canada are identical to the same as his own party. Both groups cater to the big monopolies and ignore the wants of the working people. The method is, what they both choose to call free enterprise.

Surely anyone should know, as long as big corporations are allowed to own and control the wealth and resources of any country and use same for their own individual profit, the people of that country are bound to go short of necessities. The result is many people give up hope of advancement and eventually turn out to be bandits.

The continuation of hospital co-insurance and the "hold the line" arrangement of the S.C. officials is, to say the least, disgraceful. We note now Premier Bennett is declaring to our medical officers as to when patients should leave the hospitals.

The province of B.C. is in dire need of a government of the people, by the people, for the people.

EXIT THE DEVIL

Of all the 'supernatural' spooks or beings discarded to date by Rationalists, the Devil seems to me the one with the most interesting personality. One might regret his passing; it removes so much color and drama from our lives.

Some attribute the original invention of the Devil to the early Indo-European tribes, whose ideas were adopted by the Zoroastrians, with their god of light Ormazd, and their god of darkness Ahri-man. The invention of the Devil was obviously necessary to account for so much evil in a world ruled by a supposedly faultless God.

Even so, it is a puzzle why an omnipotent God did not destroy the Devil, and thus rid the world once and for all of this evil-doer. A possible answer might be that God has kept the Devil in existence out of sympathy for theologians, especially evangelists like the direful Billy Graham—otherwise they would have little left to preach about.

IN THEIR PLACE

Appropos the editorial in the Victoria Daily Times under the caption "Is This Democracy?" Interestingly enough, the query answers itself, through the statements that have been made by the attorney-general himself; the subject matter being of course, Butte Lake versus The People. The people! What "rights" have they? The dictatorial reply from the A.G. is ample to put them in their place, and destroy any illusion they may have that they really elected a democratic government.

ELLEN HART.

SAME OLD SATURDAY NIGHT

I was pleased to read in Saturday's Times that the Chamber of Commerce agrees that Victoria needs more parking space.

The situation during the day is bad enough; but how about on a Saturday night when a person with a car would like to take in the last movie?

Several Saturday nights we have driven around and around looking for a space within a half-mile or so of the movie houses, and finally gone home in disgust.

Isn't there some way the theatres could provide space for their patrons, as they do in Winnipeg, for example? Perhaps a near-by parking lot could be rented and the driver of the car charged a small amount, if necessary.

For a capital city that receives so many visiting cars each year and has so many of its own, the parking situation is certainly regrettable.

Jose Ortega Y Gasset

Exchange

THE death of Jose Ortega y Gasset will bring a crowd of memories back to all who are old enough to remember the Spanish Republican Revolution, the Civil War and the great intellectual conflict of the century, which Spain has yet to settle. Shall Europe forever end at the Pyrenees, or will Spain become a part of Europe?

This was the great struggle to which Ortega y Gasset gave his life as the champion of Europeanization. Although a little young for the inscription, he was one—the last survivor—of the four great intellectuals who made what was called the "Generation of '38."

Joaquin Costa and Angel Ganivet had gone before the Second Republic. The Basque philosopher, Miguel de Unamuno, was determined enough to stay in Spain when the Civil War broke out, but he died before it ended, cursing "both your houses."

Ortega y Gasset went away, and for that he was never forgiven by the Republicans, although now that he is dead they may feel more charitable. However, it hurt them when he returned to Spain in 1949, after 12 years in exile, to work and publish again.

"The government pays no attention whatever to me," he wrote, "and does not interfere in the last."

It had no reason to, but in the vital years of his career Jose Ortega y Gasset was a firebrand whose ideas profoundly affected the course of Spanish history.

He was called, with some justice, the "Philosopher of the Second Republic" that began with the overthrow of King Alfonso XIII in 1931, but he almost immediately repudiated the republic that emerged.

It was not his republic; it was not an ideal republic. But he liked Fascism no better and that would go for the Franco regime, as anybody would realize who knew him.

Jose Ortega y Gasset was a failure in the sense that Spain is still outside of Europe. Yet ideas never entirely fail and never die. The times were out of joint for Ortega y Gasset, but Spain lives and there will be other times, and when they come Spain will be a part of Europe, and no one will say that Jose Ortega y Gasset was a failure.

Appalling the Pollsters

BY ARTHUR KROCK in the New York Times

THE trouble with the samplings of political sentiment that have been taken since the President's illness is that the cross-sections were too narrow and the period between the events and the questions was too long.

Accordingly this department decided to take some polls of its own in which these defects would be removed, and the results are herein presented with pardonable pride.

In the rival polls, for example, the views of only several thousands have been sought. And as much as twelve hours have passed between the time something happened and citizens were asked to say what the effects of it were on their choices for president in November, 1956.

SUPERIOR SYSTEM

In this department's samplings more than a million Americans have been solicited for their opinions of an event minutes after, and occasionally before, it happened—obviously a superior system.

Also, as will be seen, the type of questions is much more stimulating to true revelation.

The ordinary slowpoke type of public opinion poll is weighted down by a passe formula.

For example, some days before former President Truman modified his stand in favor of the renomination of Adlai E. Stevenson and stepped up his enthusiasm for Governor Harriman, a few paltry thousands were asked how they would vote if Harriman and Vice-President Nixon were the Democratic and Republican candidates for President in 1956, and the returns gave Nixon a slight lead.

But this department, anticipating what Truman was about to do, asked a much more penetrating question of a far larger number.

It was: "If Harry S. Truman shows a cooling-off toward Stevenson and a warming-up toward Harriman, how will that affect your preference as among Chief Justice Warren, Nixon, Joseph R. McCarthy, Carmine DeSapio, Mrs. Roosevelt and Jacob L. Arvey?"

HIGHER CHALLENGE

Instantly recognizing this higher challenge to their intellectuality and grasp of the intricate political factors involved, those who were sampled registered as follows:

John Lord O'Brien, 44 per cent. Dr. Paul D. White, 43 per cent. Rev. Billy Graham, 43 per cent. Clark Gable, 41 per cent. Michael J. Quill, 41 per cent.

The success of this overwhelming response, without parallel in the history of sampling—212 per cent replying of 100 per cent polled—indicated that the enterprise must continue.

So the next question submitted (everywhere but in Canarsie and Las Vegas, Nev.) was:

"Assuming that taxes are (or are not) further reduced by this administration, and that the federal budget is (or is not) balanced in 1960, how do you think your children (or grandchildren) will feel about the respective fiscal abilities of Colbert, Albert Gallatin, John W. Snyder, George M. Humphrey, Dr. Townsend, Coin Harvey and Hjalmar Schacht?"

The division among those responding was even more illuminating than the replies to the first inquiry, and should unquestionably have tremendous influence on the economic policies of the administration. This was the result:

Children: B. M. Baruch, 44 per cent. Harriman, 21 per cent. Nixon, 19 per cent. Reuther, 16 per cent. Grandchildren: Davey Crockett, 52 per cent. H. Morgenthau Jr., 10 per cent. Field Marshal Montgomery, 7 per cent. Scattering, 30 per cent.

It was now clear that the technique of "quickie" sampling of public opinion had been mastered and vastly improved, and that the confidence of the nation was firmly arrayed behind the new method.

It was also clear that at long last the true potential of public opinion polls as influences on political action had been attained. The old, slow formula stood discredited.

CONSTRUCTIVE QUESTIONS

What was wanted were constructive questions that could be quickly grasped, with all their pertinent background, such as "How many days do you want to work a week?"

These could be fired at larger, more diversified groups at the moment the news posed them—or a little earlier—and so phrased that the $64,000 TV contest would seem dull by comparison.

On that stunning realization the following inquiry was composed and circulated everywhere (except Hollywood and Phoenix City, Ala.):

"How many times you have been asked by old-fashioned pollsters how you would vote if the election were held tomorrow? And how bored you must be by it. The New Sampling, therefore, submits this question—How would you vote, as among Truman, Nixon, Harriman, Stevenson, Symington, L. Johnson, Kefauver, Stassen, Byrd, Bunche, Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborn, if the election were not held at all?"

FRACTION RECEIVED

Only a fraction of the replies have been received. After all, it is no easy matter to count and allocate several million samplings made by thousands of checkers in the field. But the trend of the responses that have arrived indicates the high vote will run Harriman, Truman, Kefauver, the Ford Foundation and Dr. Robert L. Hutchins—in that order.

The enterprise was undertaken by this department as a public service, and to speed up the sampling operations which now dawdle over the formulation of questions for hours. It is absolutely gratis.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"HE'S TIRED, TOO! HE'S BEEN DIGGIN' FOR GOPHERS ALL DAY!"

From Our Files

Oct. 27, 1895—CPR officials announced, effective today, a still further reduction in freight rates from Victoria to the Kootenay country. The cuts in some instances are 20 cents a hundred weight.

Oct. 27, 1915—Telling of almost unbelievable hardships, eight Japanese fishermen are in Victoria and a ninth is in hospital in Prince Rupert. They were blown across the north Pacific in their sampan.

Oct. 27, 1935—Possibility of establishing a 'curling rink' in the building of the B.C. Worsteds Mills on Dallas Road and the cost of an ice surface are being investigated, the Chamber of Commerce is informed.

Ignoramus

SOMETIMES I stand appalled at my ignorance. I just don't know half I should about the things I'm using every day.

Take this teapot, for instance. It's fat brown shape, it's broad blue band around its shining middle are familiar enough to me. But what I don't know about the types of clay, the color processes, the glazing, the firing in the kiln.

If I were to look up the story of pottery, I'd journey all over the world and turn back whole centuries in time.

When I make tea, as I do several times a day, I gaily spoon in the wizened leaves. But the whole story of tea is something that I really do not know.

Where would it take me? To China, India and Ceylon? To Abyssinia? Back of those tea leaves were there dark-skinned faces, unknown tongues, bright tropic garments, dusty warehouses, ships loading in distant docks with exotic-sounding names? What clerks, captains and customs men dealt with invoices or clearance papers? How many people got a cut before I paid out my good Canadian cash?

These glass jars of jam I've made. . . . What about the sugar in them? How does sugar really look when it is growing? What are the processes of refining sugar? What are the by-products?

What about the glass? Which nations are most famed for glass? When did it first appear in history? I don't really know. Do you?

As for the cellophane I've used to seal the jars with. . . . What is cellophane exactly? When did we begin to use it? I can't remember it when I was a child. But children nowadays take it quite for granted.

See this tin that holds the tea. How far does tin go back in history? I think vaguely of Cornish tin mines, and Ancient Romans and Phoenician galleys coming to Britain for the sake of tin. Is that correct? Or, as often, are my historical facts all wet?

The linoleum on this kitchen floor is another mystery. What's linoleum really made of? How, in the past, have kitchen floors been covered? What about the rushes of mediaeval times, and straw? If I hunted that story up, wouldn't I be learning about one of the causes of ancient plagues?

Isn't this fountain pen I'm writing with just a part of history? What variations of pens and pencils has mankind used to write with? What did the stylus write on? Waxen tablets, wasn't it?

Don't nearly all the familiar objects of our daily lives constantly link us with the past, though we seldom stop to think of it?

What happens to this column between the time I write it and the moment that you read it? What is the story of printing presses? What other names besides Caxton spring to your mind?

And what happens to this column after you have read it? Ah! There's a question we'd better keep away from.

"I was chopping onions on your face," a cheerful reader wrote the other day. Well, it could be worse. Much worse. Wrapping up the garbage, for example.

No, where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

No Turnips in the Jam

LONDON—My wife came home from the shops yesterday with a can of Australian jam. I tried it on some bread and butter and found it excellent. So much so, I was soon eating it by the spoonful. It tasted so much better than what we have become accustomed to with English jam that it was a treat.

It surprises me that the English, who excel in so many of the factory-produced foods, fall down so badly when it comes to jam. Nobody can touch the English when it comes to making biscuits, for instance. English bar chocolate is tops for flavor, variety of types, non-melting—whatever you look at it.

But English jam. . . that's a different matter.

Of course, one can get good jam here. You can get brands made up in fancy packaging at fancy prices and with which no one can find complaint. But that is not the type I'm discussing here. I am speaking of the run-of-the-mill jam which fits in with the average housewife's budget. As a jam lover from way back, I can say that it just doesn't measure up.

Many of the jams which find their way into this house from the local shops bear little resemblance either in appearance, texture or taste to the name of the fruit on the label.

To find out why, I got in touch with one of the biggest jam manufacturers here. When I was put through to their spokesman on these matters, I said to him: "What proportion of turnips are manufacturers allowed by law to include in their jams?"

It was a simple question, calling for a simple answer. But instead I got a long ramble about turnips with technicalities which, however, I think I've managed to get sorted out.

The spokesman said that English jam does not contain turnips. He said that was an old music hall joke, along with putting wooden chips in for pips in raspberry jam. I have no choice but to take his word for it, but two years ago the government had to step in with a very stringent set of jam manufacturing regulations which seem to infer that where there had been smoke there had been a certain amount of fire.

These regulations stated that jam makers had better play the game and include minimum percentages in their jams. Strawberry, for instance, must be 38 per cent fruit, peach 40 per cent. Blackcurrant could get by with only 25 per cent.

What was the other stuff that goes in? I was assured that the rest of the percentage was sugar and some added pectin (a setting agent) if the particular fruit didn't have enough of its own natural pectin.

But what, I asked, about some of these English jams in which you can't find anything that looks like a strawberry, a plum or an apricot? That, I was told, was because some of the makers put their jams through a "smoothing machine". Oh, no, it was not to cover up anything. It was just that some purchasers liked their jams treated that way.

He satisfied me that there are new regulations governing English jam. But he didn't satisfy me about the jam itself. I'll still go for Australian (and New Zealand and South African) jams which are brought to the English market at the same price and often less.

Youthful Teller Gets Two Years For Bank Theft
STRATFORD, Ont. (CP)—Neil Dickson, 18, former bank teller, was sentenced Tuesday to two years in reformatory for stealing $35,522 from the Stratford branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

Dickson had temptation placed in his way as result of "inefficiency" on the part of some "higher bank officials," magistrate A. F. Cook said before passing sentence.

The youth, who disappeared Aug. 12 with the bank money, was arrested in Nevada, Oct. 2, for a traffic violation.

When arrested Dickson had $14,533 cash. His counsel told the court that of the original $35,522 shortage, all has been recovered but $5,538.

Tax Cut to Feature Next Federal Budget?

Possibility Emerges With Reports of Drop Of Defence Orders for Future Delivery

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The possibility of tax cuts in the government's next budget emerged today on the basis of reports that arms orders have been snipped.

While actual federal outlay for arms is estimated to rise in the current fiscal year by $53,000,000 to $1,023,000,000 from $970,000,000 a year ago, orders placed for future delivery have declined.

From authoritative quarters it was learned they have dropped by $115,000,000 in the first half of the current fiscal year which began last April 1 to $340,000,000 from $455,000,000 a year ago.

The experts said if this trend continues—and it appears likely to do so—the overall drop for orders placed in the fiscal year may total more than $200,000,000. They believe this may be reflected in a similar decline in actual government expenditures for arms in the next fiscal year—1956-57.

MAY CUT TAXES

Finance Minister Harris is not expected to announce his budget until next spring. The government's decision on tax cuts will depend on the country's economy and the federal need for revenue.

However, Mr. Harris is almost sure to aim at a balanced budget rather than the accumulation of surpluses. He forecast a deficit of $160,000,000 this year but the economic boom—larger than he anticipated—is likely to reduce the deficit to smaller proportions.

Federal economists believe the boom will sweep over into next year. The government's budget-makers would have greater room to make tax changes under conditions which would lead to higher revenues and smaller defence outlays.

For the current year, government outlays on arms are forecast at:

Mid-Canada radar line construction $56,000,000; defence construction, not including the mid-Canada line, $100,000,000; aircraft $370,000,000; ships, $75,000,000; guns, $14,000,000; ammunition $54,000,000; general maintenance equipment $205,000,000; purchases in Britain and the United States $80,000,000. These figures are based on estimated expenditures by Production Minister Howe. They do not cover such items as military wages, allowances and other general administrative costs handled directly by Defence Minister Campbell. The over-all defence budget this year has been placed at $1,775,000,000.

But orders placed by the defence production department for future delivery have declined. There has been an increase in the first half-year in some items, but these were insufficient to offset a drop in aircraft orders to $93,000,000 from $160,000,000 a year ago.

FORT ARTHUR (CP)—Mike Guzzell, technical chairman of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association, has announced the Canadian senior ski jumping championships will be held at Midland, Ont., Feb. 12. It had been earlier reported that the championships would be held Feb. 25.

PLANS ABANDONED?

Stamp Pay Proposal Costly, B.C. Finds

BY TOM GOULD

A study by government officials has shown a stamp-book holiday pay system for British Columbia workers could be "very expensive and full of grief."

Indications are the government will abandon its plans to institute the system which was first suggested last year by Labor Minister Lyle Wicks.

Several other Canadian provinces have such a system, and B.C. officials have studied them. The stamp system is designed to provide loggers, fishermen, and other seasonal workers with a lump sum of holiday pay for their vacations.

At present, they receive holiday pay whenever they leave their jobs.

In Ontario, the system is costing $200,000 annually in administration costs.

One of the major difficulties is that when a worker loses his stamp book, anyone can pick it up and cash in the stamps.

Workers who have used up their unemployment insurance benefits also demand they be allowed to cash in the holiday stamps, before they have earned the total amount necessary.

TOO HEAVY ON THE FLATTERY?

LAKEWOOD, N.J. (AP) — Mrs. Eugene Axelrod doesn't know what to make of a letter from the Lakewood board of education.

She said she recently presented a cake to the board members for a post-meeting snack. The letter a few days later praised her spirit of cooperation, adding "of which your cake was concrete evidence."

'Went Into Rage' Says Accused At Vancouver Death-Kick Trial

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ronald Graham, 24, testified in his own defence Wednesday that he "went into a rage" when he was cursed and didn't mean to kill William Holman, 21.

Graham, charged with murder in the fatal beating of Holman in an Aug. 20 street fight in the Kitsilano district here, said he twice walked away from the beating victim.

The husky miner said he walked away after the victim said, "I hate your guts," and the second time after Holman said, "I'll get you later."

He said Holman was sitting in a car at the time and voiced a third threat, "I'll punch your head in," as he got out.

"He pushed me and smashed me," Graham said, pointing to his left shoulder. "I stepped back in a rage and then I threw a bottle at him and we went into each other."

But he said he didn't remember kicking Holman in the head and stomping on his face. The victim died of multiple head injuries.

Three youths who had been with Graham, and his sister, Shirley, 19, testified that they heard Holman swearing at Graham and saw him push the accused and strike him once.

The prosecution submitted evidence that Graham had been convicted four times in Vancouver since 1950, twice for assault, once for creating a disturbance and once for taking a car without the owner's consent.

Graham's trial was expected to be completed Wednesday but Mr. Justice Clynne ordered a sudden early adjournment until 10 a.m. today.

CROWN WITNESS BOOED; JUDGE ISSUES WARNING

VANCOUVER (CP) — A threat to "deal very severely" with any attempt to intimidate witnesses in the murder trial of Robert Graham, 24, was made Wednesday by Mr. Justice J. V. Clynne.

Graham is charged in the slaying of William Holman, 21, killed to death here Aug. 20.

The judge's remarks followed a question by city prosecutor William Heffernan, who asked Graham's 17-year-old sister, Shirley, if she was one of a group which booed crown witness Archibald Matheson when he left court on Tuesday.

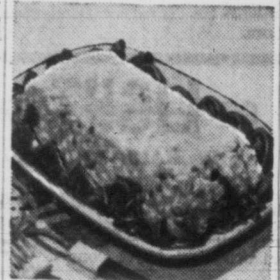

Miss Graham said she didn't hear any booing. Mr. Justice Clynne said he wanted any such actions brought to his attention. "I am prepared to deal very severely at any time with any attempt made to intimidate witnesses."

This stake is TOUGH!

The stakes surveyors use to mark land boundaries have a way of disappearing—and that can mean a whole survey has to be done over again. But now there's a new all-aluminum stake that is tough for time and weather and playful animals to handle. It won't rust, rot or weaken. And two bars open out at right angles, underground, to prevent its being rooted out by even the most muscular bear. It's a Canadian invention, made of Canadian aluminum, by a Canadian company, to meet a typically Canadian problem.

Faure Angrily Forces New Confidence Vote

Night-Long Wrangle In French Assembly

PARIS (UP)—Premier Edgar Faure called early today for a formal vote of confidence in the bickering National Assembly, a last resort strategem he hopes will ensure France's representation at the Geneva Big Four talks which began today.

The vote was set for 10 a.m. Friday. It will be his third crucial test in three weeks. If his government falls the French representative at Geneva, Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay, would be unable to speak for France or make decisions in its behalf.

Faure's call came after 12 hours of heated debate that lasted until 3:05 a.m. today. It gave him 24 hours of grace but he was in worse trouble than before.

The Assembly threatened once before to turn out a premier at a time of international negotiation. It almost fired Premier Joseph Laniel in 1953 and by doing so made him a day late for the Bermuda conference with Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Eisenhower.

TANGLED WRANGLE

Today's assembly fireworks were touched off by the powerful Socialist party which declared the Faure government incapable of ruling France.

The Assembly ignored President Rene Coty's recent warning that France must cure itself of political instability if it is to retain its rank as a world power. Both the Communists and Socialist parties introduced motions of no confidence.

Faure's own Radical Socialists introduced a motion expressing confidence. The Assembly wrangled hopelessly over which motion to vote on first. Faure ended that debate by angrily striding to the rostrum and demanding a formal vote of confidence.

QOR Buglers Play Friday At Work Point

Lieut. Cye Burley, cadet leader, said a volunteer bandmaster is sought by the corps to direct both bugles and brass bandmen on a permanent basis. The individual must have experience with band instruments and preferably a way with boys.

Record $4,200 Paid for Stamp

TORONTO (CP)—An unidentified man paid a record $4,200 Wednesday for a stamp of Canadian or British North American origin. The stamp originally was worth 12 pence when designed by Sir Sanford Fleming in 1851. History of the stamp, known as the Dundas 12d black, is obscure. It was described as "brownish black, four full margins, magnificent color and impression, sharp clear laid lines, very light target cancel, wonderfully fresh, immaculate and superb."

University Expansion Held Vital

Canadian university expansion must take place in five years or buildings and staff will be unable to handle vast new enrolment, McGill University vice-principal said here Tuesday.

Dr. David L. Thomson, dean of graduate studies and professor of biochemistry, spoke at the annual dinner of Victoria McGill Alumni Association at Victoria Golf Club.

College enrolment by 1960 will have jumped 50 per cent, due largely to a peak in Canadian birth rate in 1942, he said, and warned the increase may be as high as 100 per cent in 10 years. "It's about time both the public and the government realized these babies are not dots on a statistician's chart, but are real children getting ready to invade the schools."

BLOOD BANK FULL TO OVERFLOWING

Overwhelming Response Unexplained,
But Red Cross Officials Happy

Local Red Cross officials were fired, happy and slightly mystified today after collecting the biggest blood donation by Victorians in at least a year.

Normally the clinic falls short of its quota, but this time 600 pints were sought and 821 were given.

About 40 donors were turned away and the harried officials ran out of collection equipment. Additional equipment had to be flown here from the mainland in a special plane.

The rush started when the mobile clinic moved into HMC Dockyard Tuesday and 365 donors appeared.

Man Riddles Room Kills Self With Gun

TORONTO (CP)—A 22-year-old immigrant, armed with a 12-gauge shotgun, shot and killed himself early today after riddling the walls of his hotel room with shot for more than an hour.

The senseless bombardment sent guests in the downtown Ford Hotel scurrying for safety and dozens of police to the scene, armed with revolvers, shotguns and tear gas.

The immigrant, Zorano Borg, turned his shotgun on himself minutes before police broke into the fourth-floor room.

Police said they fired only a few shots during the siege. One detective shot through a window at Borg while Borg was talking on the telephone to the hotel manager.

FOUND IN POOL OF BLOOD The police bullet struck Borg in the right side. Borg is believed to have shot himself after being struck by the police bullet.

Riots Flare Up Again in Cyprus, First British Soldier Killed

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters)—British police today fired tear-gas shells at crowds of rioting Cypriots as violence swept two main cities here.

As mobs of anti-British students hurled stones and bricks at club-wielding soldiers in Limassol and Larnaca, the British army had its first fatality in the months of terrorism on Cyprus.

A corporal died in a hospital today from wounds received Wednesday night near Paphos when terrorists exploded a hand grenade at an army truck he was in.

This afternoon, police in Limassol fired tear-gas shells to quell renewed rioting when demonstrators set fire to a British truck.

STREET RAMPAGE The demonstrators, who demand an end to British rule of the Mediterranean island and its union with Greece, rampaged through the streets of the two cities. They waved Greek flags and shouted slogans such as "Britain get out." Students at Limassol stoned British sentries and ripped down a

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

As the kids used to say:
"It's the same time as it was last week at the same time."
But what a change in the Western Hockey League during that period!

The nobodys of the first few weeks are starting to become somebodies, while the elite must look to their laurels. But quickly.

The biggest surprises have been occasioned in the eastern section of the circuit where Regina Regals and Winnipeg Warriors are starting to make noises like serious contenders.

WALKER

Two successive shutouts by Regina's Lucien Dechene have tabbed the Regals as a force with which to be reckoned. And also a force which now may gain some recognition in Regina. Crowds have been poor in the Saskatchewan capital, but the team is attempting to outlive its lack of attention and, when the football season is history, may command the respect it undoubtedly deserves. Regina loves a winner dearly. But as their big love of the moment is the Roughriders football team, the Royals supposedly must wait their turn.

Winnipeg Warriors also demand a vote as a team to bear watching. The Warriors are loaded with former NHL stars, and NHL stars of more recent vintage than we have become accustomed to see in this area in past years.

It wasn't too many games ago that Brian Cullin, Paul Masnick, Ed Mazur, Bill Mosienko, and Skipper Burchell were on the list of Stanley Cup eligibles. Their stars haven't dimmed that much in the interim that they are relying solely on their reputations to see them through.

Flyers Not So All-Conquering

The fact that Edmonton Flyers, who looked good enough in their one visit here to be regarded as even money to keep their championship rating again this year, were defeated by both the Regals and Warriors, and beaten by both on Edmonton ice and in successive games, should offer proof that a revision may be necessary by the odds-makers.

So far, Calgary Stampede and Saskatoon Quakers have been going their so-so ways, and with little lasting form evidenced it is difficult to get a morning line on the two clubs.

Out here on the coast, the Cougars have slackened off a trifle from their promising start. Although the big fault has been a tendency to give up too many soft goals, it is a problem that could be as quickly overcome. And while the happy team balance, so necessary to final success, has not yet been attained, the scoring feats of the Anderson-Macaulay-Kilburn line has been a particular boon to the club.

All three defeats have been by a single goal which best typifies the scrappy spirit of the club, an asset that past Cougar clubs could well have used.

Picking a Winner Could Be Hazardous

Seattle, moving fast, seemingly needs more punch on the wings and one more steady hand on defence. Vancouver is having its only problem in goal; while New Westminster's "old legs" may still be enough to see them through.

In short review, it would appear that the prairie clubs don't enjoy any particular edge over the coastal units. Edmonton showed well here, but Winnipeg, which beat Edmonton, has already suffered two losses on the coast.

All of which could make for a well-balanced circuit.

Junior Swimming Gala At Crystal Tonight

Three major trophies, two of them held by S. J. Willis Junior High School, will be on the block tonight at Crystal Garden in the 30th annual junior high school swim gala.

S. J. Willis will defend the Dickinson & Dunn Trophy, for highest aggregate point total, and the Canadian Legion, Britannia Branch, Trophy for the junior boys' relay event.

Pendray trophy, for the winning girls' relay team, is currently held by Oak Bay Junior High School.

A total of 174 swimmers from eight schools have entered the gala. Schools entering teams are S. J. Willis, Oak Bay, Central, Lansdowne, Royal Oak, Lampson St., St. Margaret's and Milne's Landing.

Swimmers are divided into two classes, under 13 years of age and over 13, with the winning swimmer in each event to receive a bronze medal. First three finishers in each race will be given certificates. Starting time tonight is 7:30.

Texans Top Mat Program

Two tall Texans take top billing tonight at Victoria Ballroom in the weekly professional wrestling show.

Tex McKenzie and Sky Hi Leo, both hovering around the 7-foot mark, will meet head-on in one half of the double main event. Other half will be "Mr. Murder" Mills and Dr. Timothy Geoghegan matching scowls.

In the special event, Irish Dick Dillon will tangle with Ray Jennings.

Entertainment starts at 8:30.

Tubby Tommy Reflects Future

Mirror, mirror, on the wall... chubby San Francisco Seals manager Tommy Heath might be musing, as he ponders his baseball fate. As Heath sits in an isolated corner, the mirrored reflection of Hank Greenberg talks to newsmen about his plans to purchase the San Francisco Seals. If Greenberg, general manager of the Cleveland Indians who has temporarily withdrawn the offer, renews his plans to purchase the Seals, Heath might be out of a job. (NEA Telephoto.)

Alberni Cagers Here Saturday

Victoria can't support a senior A basketball team of its own, but when it borrows one, it goes whole hog.

To fill the vacancy created by the demise of the Victoria Orphans last year, the city will take partial and temporary possession of the reigning Canadian champions, the fabulous Athletics of the Alberni Valley.

Elmer Spiedel's Dominion titleists Saturday night will play the first of four transplanted games here. They meet the strong Seattle Darigolds at Central Junior High School at 8:30. A junior preliminary will start one hour earlier.

Local interest in the game should be triggered by two reasons.

First, Johnny Clark and George Denison of Victoria are now playing with the Athletics, being forced to travel up Island to pursue their game and, secondly, the Athletics are being touted as Canada's representative in the 1956 Olympic games in Melbourne, Australia.

Alberni manager Fred Bishop, with the Canadian title tucked away, is looking for an Olympic medal for his club and for Vancouver Island.

To provide the bauble, Bishop and coach Elmer Spiedel have almost a full majority of last year's club back and have deepened their scoring strength with the addition of Clark, who has played four games and Denison, who made his first appearance in Alberni's last game.

Clark, the lanky bucket star of a series of Victoria senior teams, had exhibited that he still is one of the best scorers in Canada and leads the Alberni team in scoring this season with 66 points in four games.

With Joe Samarin unable to make Saturday's trip here, Clark will likely see full-time action against Bob Graf's Darigolds.

Other stars back with the Alberni team include burly Ron Bissett, the former Seattle U. star who scored 681 points in 43 games last year; veteran team captain and guard Al Brown; Johnny Kootneko, rated as the most promising player on the club and Dave Williamson and Don "Twitter" Hill, who played briefly with Victoria last year while attending Normal School.

Jump shot specialist Doug Brinham is attending Normal School this year but he may

Maple Leafs Trip Canadiens

New York 6, Detroit 2
Toronto 2, Montreal 1

By The Canadian Press

Ron Murphy is more than a month ahead of his goal-scoring objective in the National Hockey League.

Murphy was told by coach Phil Watson to score at least 20 goals in his 1955-56 season with New York Rangers. Watson said four goals a month would do it.

With the season three weeks old today, the 22-year-old Murphy raised his total to eight Wednesday night as he scored twice in leading Rangers to a 6-2 triumph over Detroit Red Wings at New York.

In the only other game, the Maple Leafs pulled a surprise 2-1 victory over the leading Montreal Canadiens before a sellout crowd of 13,852 at Toronto. The Leafs moved into sole possession of fifth place.

TOPS SCORING RACE

Murphy's two goals and an assist sent him into a first-place tie with teammate Dave Creighton in the individual scoring race. Each has 12 points.

The Rangers took over second place in the standings with 10 points, one behind Canadiens. New York goaltender Lorne Worley, rumored to be in danger of being shunted to the minors for inconsistent play, was great in turning away 41 Detroit shots before the 9:52 fans. Glenn Hall kicked out 21 Ranger drives.

Creighton, Andy Hebenton, Jack Evans and Dean Prentice were Rangers' other goal scorers. Ted Lindsay and Earl Reibel were Detroit marksmen.

Lindsay's goal, which came seconds before the game ended, was his 27th and tied him with Aurel Joliet, former Montreal great, for most goals by a left winger.

ROOKIE BEATS HABS

Rookie Dick Duff, a 19-year-old left winger, scored both Toronto goals as Leafs made it four straight home games without a loss. On the road they have lost all five games.

Centre Jackie Leclair opened the scoring for Canadiens at 3:37 of the second frame but Duff ended the count at 16:25 with his first NHL goal. The young Leaf forward won the game in the third period when he scored on a 10-foot shot at 2:39.

Black Hawks make their second appearance of the season at Montreal in the only game tonight.

Seattle Moves Up Ladder

Seattle 5, Winnipeg 1

SEATTLE (CP)—Seattle Americans are within two points of first place in the Coast division of the Western Hockey League.

The Americans increased their season's total to eight points—two behind Victoria Cougars and Vancouver Canucks—with a 5-1 victory over Winnipeg Warriors here Wednesday night.

Ed Dorohoy and Ross Watson each scored two goals for Seattle with Val Fonteyne getting the other. Ollie Dorohoy got two assists.

Winnipeg's lonely goal—opened the game at 3:14 of the first period—was scored by Barry Cullen with an assist from Hugh Barlow. The 15-foot screen shot slid past goalie Charlie Hodge, who stopped 36 other attempts.

Ed Chadwick, Winnipeg net-minder, thwarted 42 Seattle efforts.

ED STARTS IT

Held scoreless during the first 20 minutes the Americans caught up in the second frame. Eddie Dorohoy drove in a screen shot to tie the count and Watson got what proved to be the winner as he, Fielder and Fonteyne executed a perfect scoring play.

Fonteyne scored handsily in the third period, taking a Fielder-Watson pass and scoring from 10 feet out.

Eddie Dorohoy caught a bouncing puck in front of the net and whipped it in to make it 4-1. The final goal came a moment before the game ended. Ollie Dorohoy dug the puck out of the corner and passed behind the Warrior net to Fielder, who in turn found Watson uncovered near the goal crease. Watson scored easily.

WARRIORS' HEAD MAN TELLS ONE ON LESTER

Alfie (The Coach) Can Spina Yarn Too

Alfie's been around. You could tell that last spring at the first meeting with the fellow.

This was in Calgary where the Stamps were battling the Cougars in the Western League playoffs.

The Cougars were battling the flu, but that doesn't matter now.

What does, is that Alfie's back in the picture again.

Alfie Pike, that is. Alfie was scouting the series, scouting the WHL. For at that time he was coach-elect of the Winnipeg Warriors who were to make their league debut in the fall.

Alfie wasn't talking too much about the future. He inferred that a working agreement had been negotiated. But he wouldn't say "yes" and he wouldn't say "no" when either Toronto or Montreal, or both, were mentioned.

But he would talk about the past—his glorious days as coach of the Guelph Biltmores, Canadian Memorial Cup champions. He mentioned some of the kids from the team who had gone up to the big time—Ron Murphy, Aldo Guidolin, Andy Bathgate... there's eight in all, he said.

And he was also first-class in the story-telling league.

"Remember the time," he said to Muzz Patrick, his former roomie on the Rangers, and also a studios guest at the playoffs, "when you beat Lester out of a fine?"

This was a yarn that apparently has a revered place in the Ranger annals.

It seems that Muzz, Lynn (Patrick) and Babe Pratt once broke club rules. Lester was furious. He called a club meeting for the express purpose of admonishing the culprits before the rest of the team.

First on the carpet was Pratt. He pleaded guilty and drew a fine. Lynn did likewise and was assessed the same penalty.

But Muzz, innocent until proven otherwise, started to argue the point. Lester became so incensed he ordered Muzz out of the room. But he forgot to fine him.

Later when Lynn and Babe learned of this, they complained bitterly.

Result, the fines were rescinded and all three got off scot free.

"Thanks to you," said Alfie to Muzz.

But now Alfie is in more serious business. He's here as coach of the Warriors, who meet Victoria Cougars Friday night at Memorial Arena.

Those working agreements have materialized and the tie-up between the Warriors and

ALFIE PIKE

... there was the time!

the Habs and Leafs is one of the best in the circuit.

Alfie has said replacements for his club must come directly from the Habs and Leafs, not through intermediate points in the AHL.

As yet, he hasn't needed any. His Warriors, slow to start, figure to come along with a rush.

He's happy with what he's got — Ed Mazur, Paul Masnick, Fred Shero and Danny Sommers, proven veterans all. He's pleased that Bill Mosienko now is in the fold and he's glad he's got another tried performer in Skip Burchell, ex of the Montreal Royals and Canadiens.

A trifle dismayed at successive defeats at the hands of the Canucks and Americans, he's pointing higher here.

"After all, I scouted this team," he can say truthfully.

BOARDWALK BILLY BACK ON BOARDWALK

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—John Holman, a massive and notoriously slow Chicago Negro, smashed Boardwalk Billy Smith back into fistic oblivion Wednesday night, knocking him out with a vicious right cross at 1.43 of the seventh round.

The plodding Holman pursued Smith listlessly through the first five rounds but finally caught him in the sixth with a series of left uppercuts, followed by a left hook that dropped Smith under the ropes. Holman weighed 203½, Smith 175½.

Stuke May Know Future Tonight

VANCOUVER, B.C. (BUP)—The British Columbia Lions scheduled a meeting of their executive for appointment of a coach for next year the No. 1 issue.

The fate of Annis Stukus, head coach of the Lions since their entry into professional football in 1954, hung on the outcome of the session. There was a strong possibility Stukus would be signed for a third year in the job, but some observers suggested that his failure to get the Lions into a playoff berth this fall meant he was through with the western conference team.

The Lions won only one game, lost 15 and finished last in the five-team circuit during their freshman season.

This year, they won five, lost 11, and are tied for fourth place with the Calgary Stampeders.

The Stampeders and the three other teams in the conference still have one game to play. The Lions closed out their 16-game schedule last Monday night.

Stukus said this week that he would be happy to return next season if the club's directors wanted him. He said he was confident the Lions needed only one more season's experience to become top-flight contenders in the western conference.

Flyers Whip Leafs

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Spokane Flyers scored a decisive Western International Hockey League win over Maple Leafs here Wednesday, whipping them 8-3 in a game that saw only two penalties.

Big men on the Flyers scoring section were Art Jones and Lorne Nadeau with a brace each. Gord Kurbasek, Stan Gordichuk, Bill Luke and Bill Hodge each scored one.

Did Muzz Pull Sandy When He Bought Andy?

NEW YORK (CP)—After years of desperation and sagging interest, New York hockey writers suddenly seem to have found enjoyment in their work.

The bundle of colorful material provided by Phil Watson and his "new look" Rangers has made the writers perk up and the result has been almost daily bright feature stories on the local sports pages.

For a time last season things got so bad that many New York newspapers ran stories only on the actual games. There also were periods when the Rangers hardly would get a mention for a day or two at a clip.

Wednesday, every afternoon New York paper had a story on a different Ranger player and one paper even ran two lengthy stories.

The writers seem to have taken heart from the fighting spirit of Watson, the old pro, and the club's will to win.

This long-missing spirit, which could provide the shot in the arm the sport has needed in New York for years, was the theme of most of Wednesday's stories and has been since the season started.

A sample of this afternoon's work: James Burchard in The World-Telegram: "Honest Andy real bargain for Blues." (A feature on Andy Heberton, the former Victoria star, and how Ranger general manager Muzz Patrick claims he outwitted his father, Lester, in getting Andy, dubbed by coach Watson "the honest worker.")

Barney Kremenko in The Journal-American: "Deals keep Creighton angry, fit." (A story on Dave Creighton, who says he was so mad at being traded to five clubs within a year that he has decided "to give it an all-out try with the Rangers.")

Jerry Mitchell in The Post: "New Blues have 'mean' look." ("A mean look that becomes them" writes Mitchell in a lengthy yarn in advance of Wednesday night's game against Detroit Red Wings.)

The Post also devotes a whole column by Milt Gross to Lou Fontinato, the Ranger defenceman whom Muzz Patrick describes as "a guy who will mix it with a bull, no holds barred."

Watson and Patrick both admit they have had to sit on leaping Louie occasionally to calm him down. Fiery Phil figures Fontinato "is just the kind of player who would skate over his five sisters if they suddenly loomed in his path."

Muzz, in sounding off on his deal to get Heberton, a rugged 180-pounder who has missed only three games in his last 280, says: "Pop had Andy on his Victoria club five years. But I got him for less than the NHL waiver price of $15,000, although he scored 46 goals last season and was named all-star Western League forward. I never got myself a better bargain."

Lester will journey here from Victoria next week to see how Heberton is getting along in the bigtime and Muzz figures the old Silver Fox will still claim he got the better of the deal. He paid the Canadians only $5,000 for Andy five years ago.

Saigon Celebrates Diem's New Republic

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Ngo Dinh Diem Wednesday solemnly proclaimed South Viet Nam a republic and became its first president.

Diem, who came to power in this Indochina state in the midst of chaos and despair last year, won 98.2 per cent of the vote in a referendum Sunday. The action deposed ex-emperor Bao Dai and made Diem the new chief of state.

A constitution is scheduled to be adopted next month, and soon after a general election will name the first legislature.

Diem proclaimed the birth of the republic before a cheering crowd of thousands who pushed into the grounds of Independence Palace.

Church bells pealed, sirens wailed and a 23-gun salute boomed in the distance.

Diem was named chief of state by a near-unanimous vote of 5,828,907 in the referendum, Bao Dai, who had been chief of state since 1949, got only 60,017 votes. He has been living on the French Riviera for almost two years.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

By FREEMAN KING

District Notes — The Provincial Council tonight in Vancouver will be host to a number of B.C. Scouts attending a training parley which will be conducted by J. L. McGregor of Ottawa.

Those attending from Victoria are District Commissioner George Barr, Executive Commissioner Robert Milks and Scouts Winnie Bennett, Winnie Lees, George Bennett, Dick Warner, Frank Nelson, Art Chamberlain, Jim Redwood, Glen Oliphant and Jack Jahour.

A district preliminary course for Cub leaders will start at 8 p.m. Nov. 7 at headquarters, 1034 Johnson Street. "Scouting explained" courses will be conducted at Oaklands and St. Mathias' Church hall.

Monthly meeting of the district executive committee will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. at headquarters.

Groups are asked to send their annual registrations to the district office as soon as possible. Deadline is Oct. 31 and badges may be cut off from that date.

Rover Scout cross-country compass run was won by Harold Harrison and Gordon Dailey of the Esquimalt crew. Teams from North Quadra and Fairfield completed the course out of seven teams entered.

Fastest time for the course of six miles over swamps, up a mountain-side and through thick bush was 4½ hours.

Eighteen Queen Scouts under Scoutmaster Frank Nelson formed a guard of honor for Lady Baden-Powell when she inspected Guides and Brownies at the Armouries last Wednesday.

Deep Cove Group — The troop has undertaken to care for the grounds of Holy Trinity Church. It will be a weekly task and a duty roster has been drawn by the boys.

At the pack meeting a going-up ceremony was held when Eddy Donald went on to scouting.

Dunsuir Troop — Scouts are working for their citizenship badges by putting in hours of work in public service. A patrol of the Parkdale Troop undertook to split and stack wood for an elderly pensioner who had been confined to bed by a stroke. Tillicum Scouts, under Scoutmaster Bob Webb, visited salvage ships in the harbor and were shown how they are operated by A. Smith.

Cadboro Bay Troop — David Gillian and Bill Blake have been awarded Cub instructors' badges for their work with the pack. Michael Whittaker of the Fairfield Troop also received his instructor's badge.

The Willows Troop held a father and son evening Monday, under the leadership of assistant scoutmaster Harry Young.

Windsor Park Group — Roger Barty, Kenny Kern, Peter Morgan, Ricky Higgins and Gregory Tuck of "B" Pack were invested by their Akela, Bill Heben, as a "sixer" and Jack Angus received his second stripe. The pack will be host to the Third Victoria Pack Tuesday, Oct. 31.

Third Victoria Group — A going-up ceremony was held recently when John Condon, John Allan, Bjorn Berg, Earl Joyce, Millan Porpupe, Peter Loudan, Paul Alexander and David Rasmussen became Scouts and were welcomed into the troop by Scoutmaster George Bennett. Over 50 parents attended.

At the troop meeting Friday regular scouting activities were held, new boys working under their own patrol leaders.

Royal Oak Group — Ken Smith has been elected chairman and Jack Hawes vice-chairman, with Mrs. D. Qual secretary. The troop will hold a special organization meeting tonight.

The Cub pack will hold their first meeting of the season on Thursday evening at 6.30, in the West Road Hall. Boys between the ages of eight and 11 will be welcomed.

Chinese Group — Instruction in semaphore was carried out and jungle stories told in readiness for jungle plays to be presented at the next meeting.

Patrol leaders ran the meeting Friday in the absence of the Scoutmaster through sickness. The project was the making of a "monkey" bridge and carrying over it a man on a stretcher. Victor Lee was welcomed to the troop.

Campbell River Group — A Scoutmaster was lost to this district when Const. Thomas Foster, RCMP, was transferred to Vancouver. He had attended the Jamboree with five Scouts from the group. Howard Webster was elected chairman, Mrs. A. E. Brealey secretary and David Power treasurer.

Parkville Group — A total of $140 was realized from an Apple Day drive for funds for the local group.

Heals Renovation Asked by Riflemen

Spittal Says Saanich Range Inadequate;
Pearkes Asks Ottawa to Boost Standards

Immediate renovation of Heals rifle range, off West Saanich Road, to bring it up to Provincial Rifle Association standards has been asked by Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, MP, in a letter to minister of defence.

He acted after Maj. A. M. Taylor Spittal, president of B.C. Rifle Association, declared the government range has deteriorated and its facilities are inadequate.

It had been planned to hold the BCRA 1956 annual shoot at Heals, Maj. Spittal said, but without renovation the meet will be out of the question. It will be held at Blair range in North Vancouver, which the rifleman called a "mudhole."

HEALS NEGLECTED

"I suppose they've spent $40,000 to $50,000 on Blair and nothing on Heals, and Heals is a much better range than Blair will ever be," he said.

"They haven't spent anything on maintenance at Heals for the last four or five years at least. We just couldn't hold the meet at Heals in its present condition."

He drew attention to the lack of toilet, washing and proper heating facilities and said "men can't live there in tents in rainy weather."

"You wouldn't want to eat anything that came out of the kitchen," he added.

Gen. Pearkes said he felt it was more "a lack of accommodation rather than deterioration of facilities themselves."

"At the same time, the range is not in first-class condition to hold a provincial rifle shoot."

$6 BILLION IN DEBT, SAYS LONARDI

Austerity, Work, Sacrifice New Program for Argentine

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—A squarely on ousted president Juan D. Peron, saying the "irresponsible and corrupt" 10-year rule of the fallen dictator had left economic chaos. Making a detailed radio report Wednesday night, Lonardi said Argentine gold and dollar reserves totalled $1,680,000,000 at the end of the Second World War. Now, he said, Argentina has an internal debt of $5,000,000,000 and a foreign debt of $757,000,000, and reserves are down to $450,000,000. Argentina piled up vast reserves during the war by selling wheat and meat to the Allied powers. When Peron came to power at the end of the war, Argentina was at its highest pinnacle of wealth from wartime profits.

City Rejects Bid to Extend Sewer Lines

DUNCAN—The city council has turned down a request from a local real estate company for sewer extension lines to two of its subdivisions in North Cowichan municipality, a short distance beyond the city limits.

Mayor J. C. Wragg said Wednesday that the development of the whole of Duncan and district area would be facilitated if the city's boundaries could be extended to include much of the built-up section already being served by the city's water system.

The city council decided that until such time as all the city's residents are serviced, no extension outside the city will be considered. Present sewerage extensions under construction will tax the city's sewer system to capacity, it was reported.

The council went on record in support of the $660,600 building by-law proposed by Cowichan School District No. 65. The city hall will be one of the polling places in the vote Nov. 19.

Biggest items in the by-law are a new high school in the southern part of the school district, near Cobble Hill, and a six-room addition to Duncan Elementary School.

A somewhat similar by-law was defeated by the ratepayers in district 65 last April by a substantial margin, with Duncan overwhelmingly opposed.

L. Malleson Represents Ratepayers

DUNCAN—Major L. A. Malleson Wednesday night was elected representative of the Bayview School attendance area in the Cowichan School District 65.

Five trustees attended the school ratepayers' meeting to explain the board's $660,600 school expansion program which will go before the voters Nov. 19.

Trustee Ross Marshall, Shannan Lake, said the building program would increase taxes between one and two mills, if assessment rolls remained the same. Many of the 28 registered ratepayers present were not high school in the Cobble Hill area.

George Bonner, chairman of the board, said he believed the total cost of education should come out of consolidated revenue and "not from its present source."

The federal government, he said, should pay all education costs.

"They have taken enough out of this province to more than pay our costs of education," he said.

Sidney Residents Buy Race Horse

SIDNEY—Two Sidney residents, Mrs. F. Spear and Mrs. D. Colpitts, have purchased the four-year-old filly Beau-Lass from Montrose Stables.

The race horse, which is from the Ronald Graham string, will be wintered at Tara stock farm of Mr. and Mrs. R. Colpitts, Patricia Bay Highway.

Preparation is presently underway at the farm for accommodation of all types of horses.

Langford Gardeners Hear Talk on Bulbs

LANGFORD—Preparing ground for bulbs was discussed by H. Goulding at the regular meeting of Langford Garden Club in the community hall here.

Unusual plants brought by members were examined, and Mrs. B. Baker, president, conducted a question period.

Duncan Employment Level Remains High

DUNCAN—Employment throughout the Cowichan area has been at a high peak, stated R. S. Robinson, manager of the Duncan office of the National Employment Service, in his October report issued Wednesday.

Logging, sawmills and construction projects have been active, and this condition is expected to continue throughout the next month at least.

Orders for skilled and in some cases unskilled loggers have been difficult to fill due to the extremely low number of work applicants. Suitable farm help is almost impossible to obtain, Mr. Robinson reported, even though the summer work program on the farms has been completed.

Present construction contracts are expected to provide work for the available workers for the remainder of the fall months.

The B.C. Telephone Company is installing 750 miles of open wire and wire in cable throughout the Duncan area. Duncan telephones total 3,017, more than double the number in use in May, 1954.

The prolonged spell of clear, dry weather has retarded the sale of seasonal clothing and footwear, although business generally has been normal for this period. Sales of television and heating appliances have been active.

Among women applicants there is a slight surplus of office clerks, waitresses and household workers.

Drillers Checking Northern Prospect

CAMPBELL RIVER (CP)—An exploratory drilling crew will set up operations on Porcher Island, near Prince Rupert, to test for iron ore.

The crew, from the Argonaut Mining Co. here, left for the island Wednesday.

If tests show good ore, operations similar to those at the Quinsam mine near here, will be started.

Coldwell Fears Nuclear Tests

PORT ALBERNI (CP)—Canadian initiative in seeking an end to nuclear weapons tests was urged Wednesday night by M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader.

"Let us not take any chances," Mr. Coldwell said as he quoted warnings by various scientists that continued tests might result in a build-up of radioactivity which might doom future generations.

Canada should take the lead in the United Nations in urging that tests throughout the world should end at least until a scientific survey determined how far the tests can safely go.

"This is not too much to ask and it should be done now," he said.

Last year's hydrogen bomb test in the Pacific had scattered millions of tons of lethal radioactive dust over 11,000 square miles.

"The very act of experimenting with these tremendous weapons, even in remote areas of the world, may endanger the people of the future, for the radioactive particles linger on and become steadily concentrated as explosion follows explosion."

EMPRESS MOTORS

FORT AND QUADRA

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

I see where the warden of Oakalla prison is going to make a speech to the 500 members of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association.

There is something about this simple fact which intrigues me greatly, and I am sure it will appeal to all pupils and former pupils.

In fact, some former pupils with whom I have discussed the matter think the situation is in reverse. They feel the teachers could well make a speech to the warden of Oakalla prison, as the teachers know more about misbehaving characters than the warden does.

I have no knowledge of current manners and morals among school students, but have vivid memories of things in the dear old days when an assortment of pedagogues attempted to ram a modicum of knowledge into my unreciprocative cranium.

I was a member of a class at Britannia High which had elected to specialize in science and Latin.

The reason we so chose was not because we loved science and Latin, but because in so doing we could avoid French.

As a result, it was an all-male class and, to say the least, a virile group.

One day, I remember, we became somewhat annoyed with our mathematics teacher, a terrible tempered Mr. Bang type, who, when goaded beyond endurance, had a distressing tendency to throw things, ranging from small bits of chalk to large dictionaries.

The distressing part of this tendency was his accuracy, as he had been a baseball pitcher of some renown.

At any rate, the class became collectively annoyed with him, and, immediately prior to a period he was to conduct, removed the classroom door from its hinges and propped it back in place, supported only by the latch.

Then the class started a game which involved a pair of dice and loud cries of "come seven, come eleven—baby-needs a pair of shoes."

As expected, the noise brought action. Feet were heard pounding down the corridor, the door was thrust open, and, as planned, fell flat on the floor with a loud crash and shattering of glass.

The members of the class prepared to duck, wondering idly what objects the maths teacher would elect to throw.

The only trouble was, it wasn't the maths teacher. It was the principal. And the principal wasn't a baseball man—he was a cricket enthusiast.

My, that man carried a straight bat! I can still remember, painfully.

Oh, well, I seem to have digressed, reminiscently.

All I am suggesting is, the members of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association could probably tell the warden a few things to make him glad to go back to his nice, well-mannered convicts.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Two travel films dealing with South Africa and Scandinavia will be shown at the Victoria Public Library Friday night at 7.15. Both are in color with sound. Books on the two countries will be displayed and available for circulation. There is no admission charge.

A B.C. Pilotage Authority launch towed a fishboat to safety Wednesday night after an engine breakdown.

The 38-foot trawler VJB, with owner Rudolph Norton, 1636 Hampshire, aboard broke down off Ross Bay beach and was drifting inshore when spotted by Jack Barnes, a city fireman. Barnes notified pilotage, and the launch, in charge of Tom Taylor and Doug Collins, went to the aid of the VJB before she could go aground.

First meeting of the Victoria Great Books discussion group, open to anyone with an interest in books, will be held in the public library Wednesday, Nov. 2 at 7.30 p.m.

The meetings are jointly sponsored by the library and Victoria College, and will meet fortnightly for two-hour discussions of selections from works of the great thinkers and writers.

Those interested may obtain additional information by calling Fred White at 2-7242. Margaret and Gerald Vincent will be discussion leaders.

Brahm Wiesman, director, Capital Regional Planning Board and Reg Bowering, director, division of public health engineering, department of health and welfare for Victoria are attending the 22nd annual meeting of the Pacific Northwest Sewage and Industrial Wastes Association underway here at the Empress Hotel.

The two leading civic employees plan to study reports submitted and analyse points applicable for Victoria sewage problems both now and in the future.

Victorians who failed to register for the start of a Victoria College evening division course, "Sixty Years of Motion Pictures" can come in late at a reduced fee.

Officials said today seven lectures, including showing of films dating as far back as the First World War are still open for registration. The third lecture is in room 101, Ewing Building, Friday night starting at 8 and continuing to 10.30.

Police radio-equipped motorcycles will be on duty in full strength Monday night to guard against Halloween damage. Eight motorbikes have new two-way radios now.

Police have already cautioned several youngsters in vicinity of Sir James Douglas School they couldn't wait for Halloween and were exploding fireworks at noon hour Wednesday. Although sale is restricted in Victoria, many youngsters have been buying their supplies in the surrounding municipalities.

Fireworks legally go on sale in Victoria stores Saturday—not Friday as was previously reported.

Natural color slides of the Holy Land will be shown by Seattle photographer Earl Kennell in the Crystal Garden lower ballroom at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 1.

The showing, open to the public, is sponsored by a local church group with entry collections to be used for church development.

A motorist who told Magistrate Henry C. Hall he was attending a court trial when his car was ticketed for overparking at a meter was a suspended sentence in city court today.

Alexander Patterson said he was a witness at a trial in the Bastion Street courthouse when his car was ticketed on Oct. 13.

Verne L. Radman, 1127 Colinton, was fined $10 or three days in jail when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to a charge of overtaking and passing another auto at a crosswalk.

Police said the offence occurred Oct. 7 at a school crosswalk on Gorge Road.

Fine of $15 or three days in jail was imposed on Barry G. Lucas, Feast Road, when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to a charge of failing to stop for pedestrians in a stop-when-occupied crosswalk zone.

Police said four children and two adults were crossing in a crosswalk at Douglas and Kings on Oct. 7 when the accused failed to stop his car.

Wet weather is holding up completion of the much-delayed Carey Road bridge, on the Douglas Street end of the Patricia Bay highway.

Officials said today decking and approaches remain to be completed, and that surfacing cannot be laid until the weather breaks for a long enough period.

The bridge was to have been completed by the end of this month, after several earlier postponements caused by a set-back in delivery dates for steel and other mechanical reasons.

170 Northwest Sewage Experts Open 3-Day Parley at Empress

One of the major problems in waste and sewage disposal has been lack of direct federal control, J. R. Menzies, chief of the public health engineering division, National Health Department, Ottawa, said here today.

He was addressing the opening session of the 22nd annual meeting of the Pacific Northwest Sewage and Industrial Wastes Association in three-day convention at the Empress Hotel.

While public interest in pollution abatement is developing, the question of waste treatment is often one of secondary concern in industry because of the necessity for production, he said.

But "there has been no uniform policy in sewage treatment," he said, with the matter left to provincial or municipal legislation.

In Canada today, said Mr.

B.C. Shipyards May Construct Russian Ships

Two Victoria and one Vancouver shipyards may bid for construction of small vessels for Russia—like tugs, salvage ships, lightships and floating drydocks.

Speaking for Yarrows Ltd. and Burrard Dry Dock Co., Clarence Wallace, president of both firms, said today: "We are preparing estimates."

Bids have been asked by Marshall Johnson, president of East-West Export-Import Co. Ltd., acting as intermediary between the Russian trading agencies and Canadian shipbuilders.

He said he is "reasonably certain" the deal will be permitted by the Canadian government.

Mr. Wallace said the proposition of building ships for Russia in Canadian yards has been under discussion for some time, and is still in the "talking" stage.

Victoria Machinery Depot may also submit estimates, although Harold Husband, managing director, said the company is "not too much interested unless firmer specifications are received."

He said the firm has been asked to submit designs, specifications and cost estimates.

"Presumably other companies would have different designs," he explained. "Then someone would have to choose the best design, and send out again for tenders."

170 Northwest Sewage Experts Open 3-Day Parley at Empress

Menzies, there were 250 sewage treatment plants, serving one-fifth of the population. But there was "great difficulty" in getting men trained for plant operations, both at the federal and provincial levels. Emphasis needed to be placed on training adequate personnel, he stated.

There was "little doubt" that many existing plants were overloaded, and needed either extension or replacement.

Mayor Claude Harrison welcomed the 170 delegates from throughout B.C., Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

He said many streams and lakes were becoming unfit for use because of contamination which pointed up importance of the work delegates were doing.

John W. Cunningham, 68, of Portland, Ore., a construction engineer, was told at the meeting he had been chosen vice-president of the 8,000-member Federation of Sewage and In-

Zoning By-Law Forever Doomed Says Macmillan

"It won't pass—neither today nor this year," said Ald. Robert Macmillan today concerning the 1955 zoning by-law.

The by-law, which has been debated since 1951, was slated for a second public hearing this afternoon and Victoria Town Planning Commission hoped it would "slide through."

It has been tabled, returned to committee, attacked by petition, amended 17 times in one day this month) and derided by architects' and builders' pressure groups.

Two mayors, five councils, all department heads and several civic groups have had a hand in its formulation.

BACKS MAYOR

Ald. Macmillan refused comment on why he was certain the by-law was due for another lengthy hoist. But in recent months, he has aligned himself with Mayor Claude Harrison in demanding additional study.

His most recent proposal was that the 110-page by-law should be split into sections and each passed separately. He told council that it hadn't taken time to study the by-law. "There isn't a single council member who knows what the amendments are about," he said last month.

Main opposition to the by-law hinges on regulation to assure new buildings have provision for adequate off-street parking, and are set back from the front of lots sufficiently to maintain city beauty.

Ratepayers in James Bay area are opposed to section which would limit apartment building south of Legislative Buildings in view of expected growth of government buildings toward Beacon Hill Park.

Mayor Harrison has pointed out several sections which he thinks leave loopholes or are badly written from a legal point of view.

The voluntary town planning group has labored on the plan for almost five years.

CAPT. PAUL TAYLOR ... Crescent's CO

Crescent Returns To Service Monday After Conversion

Re-commissioning ceremonies for HMCS Crescent, recently converted anti-submarine destroyer escort, will be held at 3 p.m. Monday at HMC Dockyard.

Senior officer present will be Rear Admiral Hugh Pullen, Flag Officer Pacific Coast, and among guests will be civilian dignitaries, officers of the navy, army and air force, and commanding officers of Pacific command ships.

On joining the fleet, Crescent will become senior ship in the Second Canadian Escort Squadron, with Capt. Paul D. Taylor her commanding officer.

Construction Camp Rulings Change Asked

A letter demanding amended legislation on temporary construction camps in B.C. will be sent to all MLA's by Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council.

The council wants a 90-day time limit set on life of temporary camps before more permanent type accommodation is provided for construction workers on long-term projects.

Original submission of the request was made in July and bolstered by demands to the minister of health by Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council.

Building trades council has been given no satisfaction by the minister, an official said, and a meeting Wednesday decided to circularize all MLA's in hopes of changes in section 1 of the Regulations for Sanitary Control of Industrial Camps Act.

LACK FACILITIES

Conditions in temporary camps soon deteriorate, council pointed out, and men are obliged to live in tents lacking adequate sanitation facilities and put up with mental and physical hazards.

A building trades committee will meet with H. L. Hansen, international representative of International Brotherhood of Pulp and Sulphite Workers (AFL-TLC), to set up jurisdictional areas within pulp mills on the Island.

Council decided to make a survey of the Island to determine the number and areas of construction trades presently unorganized. It will assist locals in such areas in organizing these men.

Hill or Hole It's Mud for City Work Crews

Up hill and down ditch, city public works crews wallowed in mud today as two major jobs progressed in Hillside-Doncaster and Dallas-Cook areas today. At left, bulldozer surmounts mound of soil scraped to make way for new waterfront parking bay on Dallas Road. Petition opposing this job was expected to reach council this afternoon.

Residents feel parking strip will be scene of wild parties in parked cars. Works committee contends nearby homes will discourage misuse, gave job go-ahead before petition was complete. At right, workmen have punched curves out of Bowker Creek, improved grades for swifter flow.

Bowker enters city limits near Doncaster and flows toward sea through Oak Bay. Home of muskrats, it has also been blamed for spreading disease germs. New work should help maintain a clean bill of health. (Times photos by Strickland.)

Disciplined Cleric Wants Laws Changed

A change in the law to help him recover his licence to perform marriages will be sought by Rev. Glen Stevenson, retired 76-year-old Anglican clergyman of Alberni.

Rt. Rev. Harold E. Sexton, Archbishop of British Columbia, revoked Mr. Stevenson's licence when he performed three marriages and conducted a service in a United Church to help his friend, the late Rev. Stanley Redman, who was ill at the time.

"I will be in touch with lawyers in Vancouver as soon as I have time," he said in Alberni today.

No Negligence By Hotel, Court Rules

Victoria Hotel Co. Ltd., operators of the Churchill Hotel, today won dismissal in city police court on a charge of permitting a minor in a beer parlor.

Magistrate H. C. Hall ruled there was no negligence on the part of the hotel management.

The charge was the first of its type laid in Victoria under the new Liquor Act.

The hotel company was charged September 16, along with a waiter and three minors.

In dismissing the case, Magistrate Hall said the charge is "suffering or permitting" a person apparently under 21 to be in a place where liquor is sold.

There was a young sailor under 21 in the premises and he was served with beer, the magistrate said.

Magistrate Hall noted there had been a dispute over which waiter had served the beer and said the minor was only in the premises a few minutes.

He noted that Roderick Arney, Jr., manager of the hotel, had said he was on duty that night for the purpose of putting minors out and that from 15 to 20 under-age persons are ejected each Friday and Saturday night.

Magistrate Hall said the manager was called away for a few minutes, and it was during this time that the youths and constables came in.

"I find there is no negligence on the part of the management of the hotel in this case," he concluded.

Part-time waiter Ronald Pollard, on duty that night, won dismissal earlier this week on a charge of serving to a minor.

Magistrate Hall ruled at that time there was a doubt as to who served the minor.

Three minors, Ross L. Kennedy, 19, HMCS Naden, and two 19-year-old Vancouver girls, pleaded guilty to charges of being in licensed premises and each was fined $50, section.

KEEP LEFT TO BE RIGHT ON THAT ANGLE PARKING

Which parking meter should you put your penny in when you angle park in Victoria—the one to your right or your left?

That puzzler has brought several complaints to city engineer's department.

Some of the letter writers charge that signs should be posted giving clear direction. The wrathful complainants say they have paid a meter when they parked only to come back and find tickets on their cars.

An official pointed out this morning the city's Streets and Traffic By-Law which states clearly that in angle-park spaces, the meter to the left of the hood gets the pennies.

Most of the complainants are women. Commissionaire parking patrolmen say women too are the worst offenders when it comes to forgetting the meters.

"They get out of the car and walk away. Maybe they think their husband is with them and he will pay."

"If he feels he has been treated unjustly, he can ask for a reconsideration of the matter, and would be prepared even now to submit his case to the judgment of a group of representative clergy or the executive committee of the diocese," he said.

He didn't give details of the changes in law he will seek.

OBLIGATED

He appealed to the attorney-general, but it was learned the government is under obligation to cancel a licence to marry on the recommendation of the governing body of the church concerned.

The Alberni clergyman also wrote to Most Rev. W. F. Barfoot, primate of Canada, and received what he termed a "feeble" reply.

"He suggested that I make a humble apology to the archbishop even though it may lack sincerity," Mr. Stevenson said.

Mr. Stevenson has considerable support in his argument with his superior.

Both the Alberni Canadian Legion branch, of which he is padre, and the Port Alberni branch, have backed him, and the Masonic lodge, of which he is a member, has the case under consideration.

"I understand also that the United Church might send a delegate to see the bishop," he said.

The case has roused considerable interest and comment in the Alberni valley, where Mr. Stevenson was vicar at All Saints' Church for 20 years.

CHRISTIAN ACT

"It is a terrible state of affairs when a minister performs a Christian act, then has his right to perform marriages taken away from him," said one Alberni woman. "There are a lot of people in this valley that are up in arms over this affair."

"I have been treated disgracefully, but I am not frightened by the threats of the bishop," Mr. Stevenson said.

Archbishop Sexton, in a statement, said Mr. Stevenson had taken a solemn oath of canonical obedience to his bishop, and had not acknowledged the communication from the bishop regarding his marriage licence.

Called away

Magistrate Hall said the manager was called away for a few minutes, and it was during this time that the youths and constables came in.

"I find there is no negligence on the part of the management of the hotel in this case," he concluded.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Will you please tell me how the terms "place" and "show" originated as applied to the second and third horses in a race?—J.A.B.

A. The Oxford English Dictionary defines the noun place as used in connection with racing, as meaning "a position among the placed competitors." The verb place, as used in racing, means "to state the position of a horse, etc., usually the first three only" among the competitors when passing the winning post. "To be placed, is defined as 'to obtain a place among the first three.' The terms seem to have stemmed from the first one-third of the 19th century, but the Oxford Dictionary does not trace the steps which led to their crystallization.

Q. How old is the province of Prince Edward Island? H.C.

A. In Confederation it is about the same age as British Columbia. The conference which paved the way for federation was held in Charlottetown in 1864, but the colony did not join till 1873. As a colony the island had had a House of Assembly as early as 1773.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Here We Go Again, Folks!
With a 'Do-It-Yourself' Kit

By PENNY SAVER

Several days ago I told you about some German-made hand-carved candles. Well, here's more candle news. Of course, it's another "do-it-yourself" kit. Perhaps the results won't be that of the German craftsmen, but at least it's worth a try, and the illustrations that are included show what can really be done with stars, brilliant, pearls and silver and gold dust that you buy. Very attractive, centrepiece candles and personalized gifts will appear after a few practices. For $1, you received a kit with instructions, five packages of decorations, and a package of pins. It's recommended that the tiny, delicate decorations be affixed on the candle with clear nail lacquer. Tiny pearls may be set on with the short pins. The 1,000 sparkling pieces in the kit will be sufficient to decorate three to four average sized candles.

Now where did I borrow this book? And where is my new volume from the library? Not a sign or word in the books to say to whom they belong! This is an easily remedied situation. To ensure the return of lent books, and remind yourself to return borrowed books, ex libris cards are in order. A package of 50 costs just 50 cents. And there are over 50 designs from which to choose. Just stick them on an inside cover or page, and there for all readers to see, is the names of the owner. "Ex libris..." Some have scenes from history, others, a suitable library scene. There are animal pictures and reproductions of famous paintings. For the children's library, there are bright colored and gay scenes. They'll love having their own name right in their book. These may be personalized at a low cost, thus providing a gift item for some friend.

Matched sets, in almost everything, is a fashion by word now. Whether it's clothes, accessories or household items, everything blends or matches. The latest I've seen are wallets, made of plastic in either a solid leather-looking finish or with a reptile finish. Along with the wallet comes a lighter, especially for Milady. It, too, is finished in the matching plastic. The wallet contains picture folders and compartments for bills, change and stamps, etc. In either finish, the set costs $2.25.

Making hamburgers is usually a major project in our house. They end up with everything in them. The only problem which arises is keeping the patties a uniform size so that they'll fit comfortably into the buns. Actually, it's not a problem, though, if you have a hamburger press. It is made of two pieces of smooth, polished wood, that fit together on a hinge. (Looks almost like a wood sandwich.) The inner sides of the pieces are hollowed out in matched sized circles, so that you just put a piece of hamburger into the hollowed-out space on one side of the press, bring down the other side, and the patties are pressed out to the right size and thickness. There's a cocky or household item, everything blends or matches. The latest I've seen are wallets, made of plastic in either a solid leather-looking finish or with a reptile

Long Engagement May Be Bad or Good for Couple

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, PhD

In the past, a reasonably long engagement of six months to a year was considered "proper." However, as the trend has been toward shorter and shorter engagements, a long one can be a problem for those involved.

(Q) "I am 21 years old and have just announced my engagement to a young man of 24 who has completed his army service and has gone into business for himself. He said that he did not feel he could be married for at least a year because he is putting everything he has into this new business until it gets started. He has told me that we may have to delay our marriage even beyond the year if his business doesn't work out well."

"I agree that this is wise, but my family and friends are making things difficult for me. They keep asking when I will be married and seem surprised, if not actually shocked, when I tell them I do not know but not for at least a year. My mother thinks we should be married by next June and, if necessary, I should keep on with my job until the business is on a good basis. She maintains that a long engagement is not good. Is she right?"—P.T.

(A) A long engagement can be "good" or "bad," depending on how the engaged couple feels about it. As both you and your fiancé agree that it is best to wait until he can devote more time to you and your new home, I cannot see why a long engagement would be harmful in any way and it should be beneficial.

During this period, you can get to know each other and your families better. You can get to know your fiancé's friends and he, your friends. You can work out all kinds of problems that are likely to arise and try to solve them before they become real obstacles to harmony in your home, such as problems relating to the budget, in-laws, and raising children.

Only if you allow the pressure of your parents and friends to influence your attitude toward your fiancé and to try to force him into marriage before he is ready will this year be a hazardous one so far as your future happiness is concerned. It is up to you to see that this does not happen.

Cream cheese contains more fat than other types of cheese with the individual moisture content restricted to not more than 60 per cent. It is in your toaster, but a unit of an unripened cheese sold as soon as three or four rolls can be sliced as it is made and while it is out-horizontally. Fashion Showings Feature Dior Jewelry

LONDON (CP)—A dazzling array of costume jewelry designed by Christian Dior and made in England is being presented in London to coincide with autumn and winter fashions.

To offset the sober colors of his own collection, Dior makes greater use of color in his jewelry, selling here at about $100 a set.

Many five-piece sets combine stud earrings, drop earrings for evening wear, elaborate bib necklace, simplified necklace and brooch, and are presented in striking designs and glittering multi-colored stones. Pearls galore, amethysts, rubies, rhinestones, colored moonstones and scores of other imitation stones come in a range of distinctive settings. The oriental theme is as much in evidence in this new jewelry as it is in Dior's fashion collection. It stands out in a bib necklace of twisted gold rings linked and richly set with garnet. There are matching dangling earrings and bracelet.

Many brooches, curved and sparkling, can be worn comfortably at the waist or to emphasize a deep décolleté back or front.

Nutrition Experts Crack Many Food Fallacies; Say 'It Simply Isn't So'

ST. LOUIS (AP)—So you've been skipping meals as a good way to reduce? Or perhaps eating olives and oysters in the belief they'll make you more virile?

If so, you're wasting either your will power or your time, says the American Dietetic Association.

Have you always thought junior needs a thick steak after a strenuous afternoon on the football field because protein needs are increased with physical activity?

Misinformation, say the association's food and nutrition experts. They add that it just isn't true, either, that sassafras thins the blood, or that cheese is constipating.

These are on a long list of food fallacies drawn up by the association's community nutrition section. The executive board of association, in convention here, recently has resolved to establish a program of providing the public with sound food and nutrition information.

MANY STRANGE IDEAS

The nutrition authorities are appalled by the amount of phony food beliefs swallowed and digested by so many.

Who, for example, doesn't believe that milk, potatoes and bread, of themselves, are fattening—or that fruit and fruit juices are not fattening?

DIOR FORGETS ALPHABET FOR 'ROUND' LOOK

NEW YORK (AP)—Paris designer Christian Dior arrived Tuesday all out of letters but not of round figures. "There will be no H-look, A-look or Y-look," he said of his fashion line this year. "I have run out of letters."

"My gowns will be simple, less full in the skirts and have hems 14 inches from the floor."

The round figures? The gowns will retail for "about $350 apiece," he said.

Indian and Persian prints make distinctive draperies and casual dresses. For a pair of drapes, just buy the largest size and cut it in half. A skirt and matching shawl and halter (one square cut diagonally) are almost as easy.

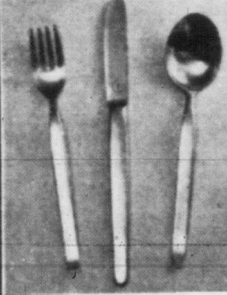

The members of the American Dietetic Association don't. Neither do they accept the old chestnuts that fish is brain food, or that fesh pork in summer will make one ill, that celery is good for the nerves, or that garlic pills help your memory.

The association's community nutrition section also has drawn up a list of groups responsible for spreading false information about food.

The salesman who distorts facts to sell his product, and the professional person who fails to keep well informed and passes on outdated beliefs are on it, along with many others.

Shared Policy Proposed In Formosa-Red China

Major-Gen. Victor Odium, CB, CMG, DSO and Bar, speaking to the Women's Canadian Club Wednesday afternoon in the Empress Hotel, suggested that the Nationalist Government now in Formosa restrict itself to that island, recognize that it is not the government of China, and resign the right to return to the mainland. In return, Red China should be prepared to resign its right to Formosa.

Speaking on the question, "Should We Recognize Communist China?" General Odium remarked on the failure of the United States to give recognition.

"The United States government feels that recognition of China means that Formosa would have to be given over to the Reds," he said.

"However, withholding Formosa from China is creating an international strain and an ill will rather than a good will," he added.

"Underneath the table," he said, "the United States is recognizing Red China by negotiating with it and this is building up a resentment destined to push China further and further toward Russia."

The speaker said that China, with a population of 600,000,000, is numerically the greatest unit of human beings in the world and therefore it is not possible to leave China unrecognized.

He noted that every country today is free to do what it wishes, but that the biggest aim is peace, which can only be gained by having the majority of world strength on the side of peace.

Mrs. Gordon Wismer presided and introduced and thanked the speaker.

It is wise that you do early train him, or her, to finish whatever is once begun. Other wise, there is too apt to be a tendency to flit from one interest to another without taking advantage of the knowledge initially gained. Fine for work connected with active sports, exercise, dealing in money or property of others.

HITLER'S LIFE

He walked together to the room in the bunker where many momentous war conferences had taken place. Then he turned to me and told me to prepare the room for his marriage to Eva Braun.

Again he was calm, matter-of-fact almost. "We will sit at this table with my witnesses, Bormann and Goebbels," he said. "We have sent for Walter Wagner, who married Dr. and Frau Goebbels."

With that he broke off abruptly and left the room.

GAY MIDNIGHT RITES

The wedding was to have taken place during the afternoon but owing to the difficulty of finding Wagner, who was a GAU inspector, it was at a midnight ceremony that Hitler and Eva Braun finally became husband and wife.

Then once again in the map room there was a small party with champagne — and the inevitable tea — to celebrate.

Everyone seemed gay and happy, determined to ignore the menace around Berlin. There was great competition, I remember, to kiss the bride's hand.

I had known her a long time, but never had I seen her look so happy.

Politicians Converging On Vancouver

Politicians are swarming to Vancouver this week-end, with four major meetings set by as many different parties.

Biggest meeting will be the annual convention of the B.C. Social Credit League, expected to draw 800 delegates from all ridings in the province.

Solon Low, national party leader, will top the list of speakers at the Sacred convention.

Friday night, national CCF leader M. J. Coldwell will be in town to attend a big birthday party marking 25 years' service in the House of Commons by CCF stalwart Angus MacInnes.

The Labor Progressive Party will be holding its annual meeting in the mainland city Friday and Saturday. Tim Buck, party leader, will attend.

B.C.'s strife-torn Progressive Conservatives, too, have a two-day convention set for Friday and Saturday. Hon. H. H. Stevens, a former federal cabinet minister, is scheduled to speak.

Victorian Admits Pushing Man Through Window

Sentence will be imposed in city police court Friday on Robert Davis, 29, Victoria, on three charges arising from an incident Wednesday night when he pushed another man through a plate-glass window.

Davis is charged with assaulting Yee Him, 30, 1530 Fort; with damage and being intoxicated in a public place. He pleaded guilty.

Constable Lorne Shandley said Davis had pushed him through a large window at Wilson's stationery store, 1401 Government, valued at $50.

The offence occurred about 7:50 p.m.

'TIL KILL YOU'

The constable told court he had to pull Davis off the man. He said Davis had him by the throat and was yelling "Til kill you, Til kill you."

Neither man sustained serious injuries in the fall through the window.

Davis told Magistrate Henry C. Hall he did not know the man and had no grudge against him.

His only reason for his actions was the fact he was drunk, he told the court.

"But we have reached a critical point where we must either move forward in a series of common actions which will restore confidence or else the future might not merely look like the past, but worse still, a deterioration of the past."

The next few weeks, Macmillan said, "present both an inspiration and a challenge."

"We must not be disturbed by temporary setbacks or thrown out of our path by obstacles, however difficult."

Reuters news agency said the opening session of the conference began with a wrangle over the priority to be given to discussions on German unity. Russia insisted that European peace must be guaranteed by a security system before Germany could be unified.

Foreign ministers of the Big Four nations opened their conference in the council room of the Palace of Nations at 4:15 p.m.

MID-EAST CRISIS

Looming before the foreign ministers—although not taken into account in pre-conference planning—is the fear that Middle East tensions could flare into full-scale shooting war.

State Secretary Dulles, Foreign Secretary Macmillan and Foreign Minister Pinay are expected to protest to Foreign Minister Molotov about arms shipments to Egypt from Czechoslovakia, since they deem the Russian government responsible.

The gallery, of course, was a little forced, a little artificial, but, even so, I don't think many of the guests realized how soon death would claim the bride and bridegroom.

It was, in fact, just 16 hours later, that I realized the end had come.

HER LAST REQUEST

I had already said goodbye to Eva Braun in her own room. She had mastered her emotion and outwardly she seemed composed. Only as she nervously clasped and unclasped her hands could I guess at her despairing thoughts.

She told me she had one last request to make. Her sister's husband Fegelein, Himmler's officer of communications and Hitler's brother-in-law for the moment, he married Eva Braun had been shot for attempting to desert the remnants of his personal troops, she said.

"Please see that my sister never knows," Eva pleaded. Then she went off to as Frau Goebbels to plead with Hitler to change his mind, to choose life and a chance to escape rather than death.

HITLER ADAMANT

Frau Goebbels sent a message asking Hitler if he would call on her. I was with the Fuehrer when the message arrived. As he read it he frowned but he agreed to go. Together we walked across to the Goebbels' rooms. There Goebbels himself intercepted the Fuehrer.

"The Hitler Youth will get you out of Berlin," he said earnestly. "Don't you want to try it?"

Hitler did not give his reply a moment's thought. "Doctor," he snapped, "you know I have made my decision. And it is final. But you and your family may go."

Goebbels, small and dapper, replied: "I have promised that with my family I will stay to the end."

They shook hands. Then Hitler turned on his heel and walked away. It was his last meeting.

Fine of $50 Given 2 Men For Assault

Convicted of assault Wednesday and told by Magistrate Henry Hall their conduct was "entirely reprehensible and improper," Tom Schultz, formerly of 2560 Graham and Lloyd Moss, 788 Hilsdale, today each were fined $50 or one month in jail.

Victims of the assault were Hugh Graham, 2548 Graham, whose baby-sitting wife he was protecting and Henry Doughty, another resident of 2560 Graham.

They sustained, respectively, a "nice black eye" and blows to the mouth when Schultz and Moss visited the Doughty apartment, Sept. 17 to complain of calls to police, reporting noisy parties.

In city police court Wednesday, Doughty told the magistrate Schultz had come to the door, accused him, falsely, of complaining to police about parties in the Schultz apartment and then struck him in the eye while Moss landed a blow on his mouth.

ROOMS INVADIED

Both Schultz and Moss then entered the apartment, Doughty said, where Mrs. Graham was baby-sitting, accompanied by her husband. In the ensuing fracas Graham got his black eye, either from Schultz or Moss.

Moss pleaded guilty to the assault charge; Schultz said "not guilty" but was convicted.

Another neighborhood feud was aired in police court when Edward Mullard, 225 Henry, was convicted of assaulting Walter Simpson, 215 Henry.

Simpson said that as a result of a dispute about a fence between their properties, Mullard hit him in the face, broke his glasses, knocked him down and made his nose bleed.

Mullard was ordered to post a $250 good-behavior bond.

Fine of $15 or three days in jail was imposed on Donald Emil Walker, 729 Lampion, when he appeared in city police court today on a charge of driving an auto with inadequate brakes.

The charge arose from an accident Sept. 30 on Esquimalt Road.

36 Antarctic Research Bases Planned by 11 Nations for '57

By BEN PRICE
Associated Press News Feature Writer

For the next three years penguins are going to have to share the bleak white continent of Antarctica with people.

By mid-1957 11 nations will have established 36 bases in or around this land of ice, snow and the most persistent low pressure area known to the world's weathermen. From these bases, shown on the accompanying map, scientists will conduct studies in meteorology, ionospheric physics, aurora and airglow optical phenomena in the upper atmosphere known to affect radio communications, gravity, geomagnetism and cosmic rays. They also will undertake several transcontinental treks to make glaciological and seismological observations to determine the extent of the ice and land masses in Antarctica.

The United States intends to have six bases on the continent itself, more than any other nation, including one smack atop the South Pole. The first units of a task force to begin preparations for establishing the bases head south at the end of this month.

Just how many people finally will be assembled around the huge land mass at the bottom of the world no one has yet figured out, but it is a cinch the continent will be populated as never before.

All eleven nations have planned their expeditions as part of the International Geophysical Year—really two years, 1957-'58. During this period beginning Jan. 1, 1957, some 5,000 scientists from pole to pole and way stations in between will pool their investigative efforts to seek further information on what makes the world tick.

It is the greatest single coordinated quest for knowledge the world has ever seen and, in fact, the South Pole expeditions are only a part of the huge scientific enterprise.

The total effort involves 40 nations, including the big Western powers, Russia, and three Iron Curtain countries.

The idea of a world-wide scientific push against the barriers of ignorance originated in 1950 at a meeting of the Joint Commission on the Ionosphere at Brussels. The proposal for an International Geophysical Year was presented next to the International Council of Scientific Unions and in 1951 the scientific planning began.

In the two-year period the scientists plan to establish man-made satellites to orbit through space as automatic laboratories, broadcasting factual data back to the earth where it will be assembled and pooled.

Outside of the satellite proposal, though, the most dramatic part of the scientific study will be the South Pole research. By the middle of 1957 the U.S. plans to have 100 scientists on the ice cap, including a 15-man station at the pole.

Three icebreakers, the forerunners of a seven ship U.S. Navy task force, shove off from three separate U.S. ports late in October. Other ships will follow in November. The 2,200 man task force will spend 5½ months in the Ross Sea setting up two bases, one at Little America and the other at McMurdo Sound, as a preliminary to the establishment of other bases deep in the continent when the scientists arrive.

About 120 men will stay over the long Southern Hemisphere winter as caretakers for the two bases, connected to the outside world only by radio.

Impaired Charge Dropped As Driver Nearly Collapses

An impaired driving charge against an ailing driver was withdrawn after the man nearly collapsed on the witness stand at his trial in city police court today.

Court was told that Morrison Sutherland, 835 Cowper, has been under medical care since a heart attack two years ago.

The trial was first adjourned for five minutes after a consultation between defence counsel George Gregory and a doctor seated in the courtroom as Mr. Sutherland became extremely nervous and seemed near collapsing.

Mr. Sutherland was white-faced and visibly shaken just before the adjournment.

When court resumed, the charge was withdrawn so as not to further endanger his health.

The charge arose from an accident Oct. 10 at the Roundabout.

Five police constables who saw him shortly after a minor accident said they thought his ability to drive was impaired by alcohol.

Barrymore Operation No Smiling Matter

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—John Barrymore, Jr., is recovering from a minor operation at Memphis Baptist Hospital but isn't smiling about it.

His wife said the surgery was performed on his lip and if the actor smiles he may delay his recovery.

PRINCE RUPERT FLUORIDATION VOTE DEC. 8

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP)—Residents of Prince Rupert will vote Dec. 8 on whether this up-coast city's water supply should be fluoridated.

The city's fluoridation committee—comprising city council members and representatives of civic organizations—approved a proposal to submit the plebiscite.

Speed-Up Bid On City Span To Be Opposed

Victoria West residents and city works officials will oppose the suggested removal of stop signs at both ends of Point Ellice Bridge.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow was slated to ask council in its regular meeting today to remove the signs.

But Victoria West Community Club chairman Charles Banfield said: "We are going to fight such a move tooth and nail. There is still very heavy traffic using the bridge and many people believe it's unsafe."

Ald. Edgelow said he had seen an earlier report from the city engineer's office which classed the bridge as safe at slow speeds for traffic up to 14 tons in weight. He felt that since the opening of the new Trans Canada Highway traffic was lighter over the bridge and the stop signs could be safely removed.

It was learned at City Hall that works officials planned to uphold the recommendation of city engineer Cyril Jones, now absent through illness, who asked for the stop signs almost two years ago.

The following table of classifications has been prepared by the Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council. Victoria theatre managers have co-operated. It covers the current films at local theatres, but it does not list films classified as adult only. The assessments are based mainly on reports in Parents' Magazine (U.S.) and the Monthly Bulletin of the British Film Institute.

Wet Outside— But This Train Was Bone Dry

VANCOUVER (CP)—It was wet outside, but 30 passengers marooned 24 hours in a stalled CPR passenger train 110 miles east of here were dry, indeed.

Railway waiters declined to serve liquor during the enforced stop, under restrictions of their licence which limits them to pouring while "transporting people from one place to another."

The train, with the track washed out fore and aft, "wasn't transporting anybody anywhere," railway spokesmen said.

VERONICA LAKE SERIOUSLY ILL

DETROIT (UP)—Actress Veronica Lake, famous for her peek-a-boo hair style, collapsed early today and was taken to receiving hospital where physicians said she probably had had a heart attack.

Miss Lake, appearing here in the play "The Little Hut," collapsed in the lobby of her hotel. Police rushed to the scene and took her to the hospital where Dr. Norman Goldston said the actress was suffering from an illness "of a serious nature."

JAMES STEWART

That's why he told it reluctantly.

"People would say it's a publicity story," he remarked.

Stewart is playing the famed flier in the story of his Atlantic hop, "The Spirit of St. Louis." He has returned from filming locations in France, Ireland and Greenland and soon starts the Hollywood shooting.

MADE MODEL.

"I was a nut about flying, too," he recalled, speaking of his days as a lad.

"When Lindbergh made his flight I happened to be out of school. I had scarlet fever. I think. Anyway, I'd hang around the family hardware store, looking for something to do."

"I was making window displays, so I got a piece of pasteboard and cut it out like part of a globe. At one side I put the Woolworth Building and at the other the Eiffel Tower. Then I made a model of Lindbergh's plane.

"After he took off I'd check with the local paper and move the plane as each report came in."

MEET AT DINNER

Jimmy met his long-time idol at dinner not long ago. The conversation went something like this:

Lindbergh: "I think you'll do a good job in the picture."

Stewart: "Thank you. I'm sure going to try."

Lindbergh: "Have you got a pencil and a piece of paper?"

Stewart supplied them and Lindbergh, scrawled his name and phone number. He handed the paper to Jimmy. "If you're ever in New York, give me a call," he said. That was the extent of the conversation between the two, both noted for their taciturnity.

Jimmy said he understood Lindbergh may come here to watch some of the filming—"but you never can tell; he's a pretty mysterious man."

Winchell's Suit Upheld By Court

NEW YORK (AP)—A State Supreme Court justice Wednesday denied a motion to dismiss a $7,000,000 suit brought by Walter Winchell against American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres Inc. in a contract dispute.

Winchell complained that last Feb. 10 he asked the company to protect him against any damages resulting from his broadcasting, and said he wished to be released from further services if the company denied his request.

Roar of River Warned Driver Averting Disaster on CPR

VANCOUVER (CP) — Engineer Bill Sharp's train was half an hour late and regulations permitted him a speed of 22 miles, but the roar of the flood-swollen Coquihalla River warned him to reduce his speed to 10 miles an hour.

The move probably saved the train and its nine crew members and 30 passengers from disaster during British Columbia's storm Tuesday.

Mr. Sharp was at the controls of a Canadian Pacific Railway train isolated 24 hours until early Wednesday by washouts on the Kettle Valley line 110 miles east of here.

The crew and passengers—including national CCF leader M. J. Coldwell, B.C. CCF leader Arnold Webster and B.C. Health Minister Eric Martin—were rescued and brought to Vancouver by bus Wednesday after remaining stranded on the rails over a 60-foot-deep washout.

Mr. Sharp said it was customary to travel past the point at 20 or 22 miles an hour. The track curves through the Coquihalla valley.

"I could hear the river roaring below us," he said, "and I decided to go slower."

"It was 6:40 a.m. and we were 30 minutes late then. I slowed down to about 10 miles an hour."

"Then, as we rounded a bend, the headlight picked out a pile of logs. They had been washed down the hillside."

"It was lucky I was going that slow. Otherwise we might have run over than 60 feet of line suspended across the washout."

The engineer said he backed up for about two miles until a smaller washout showed him the train was trapped.

Other rail lines, highways and bridges in western B.C. also were washed out during the two days of storms. Canadian National Railway services now are normal but the Pacific Great Eastern Railway said it would be several days before its Squamish-Lillooet service can be resumed. Squamish is 40 miles north of here and Lillooet 120 miles north.

More Camp Sites Urged for Interior

CHASE (CP) — Associated Boards of Trade of the Okanagan and Main Line will urge the provincial government to provide more funds for camp sites. Glen Garvin, secretary of the Kamloops board of trade, said an illustration of the scarcity of such sites was given in the Revelstoke district where the only camp site is 37 miles west of the city.

Laundryman Comes Clean In U.S. Espionage Case

YOKOHAMA (AP) — Japanese officials today indicted a Chinese laundryman on charges of spying on the huge United States naval base at nearby Yokosuka.

But a U.S. navy statement indicated that the laundryman merely was seeking information to beat out his competitors for laundry business from navy ships.

The Yokohama prosecutor's office identified the Chinese as Ku Yuan-pin, 34, and said he had collected information from navy personnel about operation of the base and movement of warships. An American spokesman said, however, that "the navy investigation has to do with suspicion of passing classified information on ship arrivals to two Chinese laundrymen who used that information to gain an advantage over their competitors in the ships' shore laundry business."

JOBLESS RELIEF PLANNING PROCEEDING WELL, SAYS MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Arrangements for federal aid for unemployment relief are proceeding satisfactorily, Prime Minister St. Laurent said today.

He told reporters after a cabinet meeting he believes the terms of federal-provincial agreements for aid are being "ironed out to everybody's satisfaction."

Lovely Chorus, Loathsome Chore

"Autumn Leaves" is the number three song on the nation's hit parade. But Autumn Leaves rate last on Harry Newton's personal list of favorites. Like hundreds of other Victoria home-owners, Mr. Newton, 1290 Union, rakes them up quickly but the trees shake them down faster than he can rake them up. However, really ardent gardeners treasure the leaves, store them carefully to be used as compost next spring. (Times photo.)

Second Man Quizzed In B.C. Bank Hold-Up

VANCOUVER (CP)—A second man was arrested on Wednesday night and held for questioning in connection with the $10,000 bank hold-up Wednesday by two masked gunmen. Meanwhile, bank officials admitted today that the lightning raid on the Canadian Bank of Commerce suburban branch could exceed the estimated $10,000. Some estimates placed the take as high as $26,000.

SERIES BY HIS VALET

Hitler's Private Life

Macabre midnight wedding toasted in champagne . . . and tea . . . deep in bunker in doomed Berlin.

By HEINZ LINGE, Hitler's Personal Valet

(World Copyright 1955)

BERLIN—In the 10 days before the lights went out forever for Adolf Hitler, the underground bunker was the scene of two gay parties.

The first was on April 20, when Hitler celebrated his 56th birthday. He was unusually gay and light-hearted, and the fears of capture which had tormented him a few days before were not to be seen.

I remember that Goering, Ribbentrop, Keitel, Bormann and other high-ranking officers came to the bunker to pay their respects.

"Faithful to the end" was the theme of the party which followed. Hitler drank cup after cup of tea—not easily procured in those days, even for him. It was his favorite and invariable drink, though he was not a teetotaler, as I have heard suggested.

Coffee and champagne were served to the other guests and Eva Braun gaily proposed a birthday toast—in champagne.

As that party drew to a close, Hitler gave his guests permission to leave Berlin if they could get away, but almost immediately the Russians cut all the escape roads.

I remember how concerned the Fuehrer grew for Eva Braun's health as they lived out their curious underground existence.

"She looks pale, my little Eva," he would say to me. "You must take her for walks up in the fresh air whenever there is a lull in the shelling. But, mind you, bring her back Linge, before the shelling starts again."

So, by his orders, I often used to accompany Fraulein Braun on a walk amid the rubble of Berlin. We were good friends, and once, near the end, she turned to me and said:

"If no miracle happens to save us, it is my greatest wish that when I die with the Fuehrer it will be as his legal wife."

Her voice broke. It was an emotional moment, but there seemed no comment that I, the valet, could make. As I hesitated for a moment, the shelling broke out again, relieving me of the need to reply. We began to hurry back to the bunker.

But I remembered her remark when Hitler sent for me on the morning of April 29. In silence

MOLOTOV BLOCKS WEST AT BIG 4 TALKS

U.S. Ready to Give Pledge Against New German Menace

$1 BILLION GM NET WILL BE WORLD RECORD

NEW YORK (UP)—General Motors Corp., earning more during the first nine months of 1955 than any corporation in history has ever earned in a full year, seemed well on its way today toward a billion-dollar net profit year.

The giant firm's nine-month sales report, issued Wednesday, said its sales for 1955 already have amounted to $9,607,873,772 and its net income for the three-quarter period was $912,887,537.

The total sales figure for the first nine months of 1955 was nearly as great as the record sales figure of $9,823,529,000 for all of 1954.

Proud Capital Premier's Aim

Present Grant 'Just a Beginning,' Says Bennett, Many Plans in Mind

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said today the capital city grant, now $50,000, "is only a beginning."

VANCOUVER'S 80-DAY DRIVE ENDS AT 15

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Van-
couver's "80 deathless days" campaign was broken at the 15-day mark today when an 83-year-old man was killed in a traffic mishap.

Police identified the victim as James Martin, who died after being struck by a small car at an intersection. Martin died in the hospital from head injuries.

Police said no charges have been laid against the driver of the car.

The death was the 16th traffic fatality of the year in Vancouver and the first since the "80 deathless days" campaign started 15 days ago.

However, Vancouver traffic officer Lorne Halley said another campaign will start immediately.

The premier said the two-year-old capital city grant is "nominal" and only serves to demonstrate that the provincial government "wants to make this a beautiful capital."

Premier Bennett would not elaborate, but said the government has far-reaching plans in mind.

CITY MUST ACT

He was commenting on the latest developments in the drive by city groups to have a civic auditorium constructed, to serve as a cultural centre and to enhance the city as a convention site.

The premier said that "the city of Victoria has responsibilities too," in a broad indication that the people of the city will have to take the lead in financing an auditorium.

DISCONTENT?

When a reporter suggested, at the press conference, that the capital city grant funds expended on the Dallas Road waterfront are contributing to the "unbeautification" of the city, the premier said that if people are dissatisfied with how the grant is being spent, they should approach their civic representatives.

The committee comprises three city and three government representatives. The government trio is from the civil service.

"If there is too much criticism," he said, "we would take a new look at it," but at present the government leaves administration of the grant to the committee.

Times Given Praise At Newspaper Seminar

NEW ORLEANS—The Victoria Daily Times was praised today by Gilbert P. Farrar, generally acknowledged to be the world's foremost authority on newspaper design, as "an exceptionally attractive and clean-looking newspaper."

The Canadian paper was one of 30 being analyzed on a page-by-page basis by ranking newspaper editors and makeup men from the United States, Canada and South America.

They are attending a seminar conducted by Mr. Farrar on ways to improve newspaper layout and typography.

The Times was dissected by the newspapermen for over an hour Wednesday morning in sessions being held at New Orleans' famed International House.

PRINCESS AND THE ARCHBISHOP — Princess Margaret and Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, Archbishop of Canterbury, are shown together in 1950. Peter Townsend.

Princess Sees Primate On 'A Private Matter'

LONDON (UP)—Princess Margaret called today on the Archbishop of Canterbury, Episcopal head of the established Church of England. The visit aroused immediate speculation that she had gone to ask for guidance about her romance with Peter Townsend.

The primate of the Church of England received Margaret in mid-afternoon in what could be one of the most dramatic developments in the two-and-a-half-year romance of the Princess and the pilot.

Margaret drove in a royal limousine from Clarence House to Lambeth Palace, the official London residence of the Archbishop.

A spokesman for the archbishop announced that "the Princess came to see the archbishop on a private matter."

Margaret's visit lasted not quite an hour. She went directly home to Clarence House.

EDEN DODGES AGAIN

While she was talking with the archbishop, the government again ducked giving an answer in Parliament to a question about her plans. Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden manoeuvred the question period in Commons so that he did not have to reply to the same question posed in vain last Tuesday by Labor MP Marcus Lipton.

Lipton wanted to know if the Government would amend or repeal the Royal Marriage Act of 1772, the law which would govern any match between Margaret and Townsend. The official question period again expired without an answer.

Dulles Offers Reds Security Guarantee In Return for Unity

GENEVA (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov blocked in the Big Four conference opening session today a move by the Western powers to begin immediate detailed discussion of the twin issues of German unification and European security.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

GENEVA (AP)—State Secretary Dulles told Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov in the Big Four conference today that to win German unity the United States is prepared to join in security guarantees "which will preclude any revival of German militarism."

Molotov in his opening statement to the conference earlier had hit hard on the Soviet theme that what is most important now for the peace of Europe is creation of a European security system.

In two world wars "unleashed by German militarists," he said, the nations of Europe have endured "untold suffering and destruction which have not yet been made good."

The emphasis both men placed on the security did not mean an identity of approach to the problem, which is in basic dispute between Russia and the western powers.

WANTS NATO SCRAPPED

Molotov wants a broad new security system, scrapping the Atlantic alliance; Dulles, Harold Macmillan of Britain and Antoine Pinay of France want simply supplemental guarantees to reassure Russia about unifying Germany.

Molotov called specifically in his talk for the abolition of the Atlantic alliance, which he said could be done "gradually." Pinay, however, declared that NATO is the basis of security of the western powers and would not be scrapped.

Opening statements of all the ministers were couched in conciliatory tones.

Macmillan, British foreign secretary, said there are "considerable gaps" between Russia and the West but Britain believes these can be bridged.

CRITICAL POINT REACHED

Dulles said: "We have all agreed that Germany should be unified by free elections. Yet to achieve German reunification at this stage requires that we each be satisfied that this step will not impair our security."

"Recognizing this necessity, the United States is prepared to join in assurances related to German unity, which will preclude any revival of German militarism."

The tensions and mistrust between the Communist and Western blocs, Dulles declared, "have deep roots that cannot easily be eradicated."

Movie comic Dean Martin was helping out in the high jinks at the Hollywood premiere of "The Desperate Hours" when he got a phone call from Palm Springs. They are shown here during less desperate hours.
